WYMORE MEN DIE WHEN ENGINE HITS AN ABANDONED CAR

Locomotive Overturns Near Reynolds, Neb. Early Saturday Morning, Causing Deaths of Engineer H. R. Lonquest and Fireman William R. Hansmire—Car Left on Track Owned by Kansas Man.

REYNOLDS, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Two were killed and one was injured when Burlington passenger train No. 14, eastbound from Denver to St. Louis, crashed into an abandoned coupe three-fourths of a mile west of here at about 1:45 this morning.

The dead are Harry R. Lonquest, 52, engineer, and William R. Hansmire, 45, fireman, both of Wymore. Both are married, and Hansmire has a daughter, Ruth, eleven years old.

Nearing the end of their run, the two were crushed when the heavy locomotive, derailed by the impact, overturned on its side. The body of the fireman was recovered soon after daybreak, but that of the engineer was not taken from the wreckage until after 9 o'clock.

The injured man was described as Thompson or Johnson of St. Joseph, Mo., baggageman in the first car behind the tender. This car, witnesses said, nosed upward, landed on its side and was headed for a creek bed when its plunge was halted.

Other Cars Derailed.

The second baggage car likewise caromed off the tracks and overturned, but no one in it was injured, as near as could be learned. The smoker, third car from the engine, left the tracks but did not overturn.

Railroad officials and local authorities were seeking the owner or driver of the abandoned coupe, a Ford bearing Washington county, Kas., plates.

The car, they said, was probably 15 feet west of where the highway intersects the tracks, and while they discounted the theory it had been deliberately placed there, they could not determine how it was driven from the highway unless the operator was confused and mistook the crossing for a curve.

The position of the car was determined, Burlington officials said, from marks designating the first impact.

Tracks Torn Up.

The tracks were torn up for nearly 300 feet, and the steel rails were badly twisted. A section worker,

LOCATE OWNER OF ABANDONED AUTO CAUSE OF WRECK

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Tom Menke, 24 year old resident of Morrowville, Kas., was identified today as the driver of the abandoned automobile that derailed a Burlington passenger train at Reynolds, west of here, this morning causing the death of two trainmen, Sheriff F. M. Tippin said this afternoon.

Menke was definitely connected with ownership of the machine from license plates found in the wreckage.

A deputy sheriff sent to his home this morning returned with Menke to this city, where he was questioned by railroad officials and then permitted to return to his home.

He had been to a dance, he said, and had taken a young lady to her home near Reynolds, when approaching the crossing a tire blew out, sending his machine onto the tracks when he lost control.

Confused, he said, as he saw the headlight of the rapidly approaching train, and realizing he could not move his machine which was straddling the rails, he left the machine and returned to his home. Menke told his questioners, officers said, that he was "scared."

ASK OPENING OF STREET IN PARK

Thirty-third Would Be Opened From Sumner To Boulevard.

Openingup of Thirty-third street through Antelope park was requested in a petition filed with the city council Saturday morning by Dr. C. Elmer Frey, whose name heads fifty-eight others on the statement. The stretch would exend souh from Normal bouvelvard to Sumner street.

The petition argues that for the mile distance between Twenty-seventh and Fortieth streets, there is no direc roce from South street to the portions of the city on the north side of the park. It also sets forth that this would make the second straight road acdoss the city from he north to south boundaries, the only other being Twenty-seventh. Only three others, the petition shows, are continuous across the city in this direction, but none of these are straight thoroughfares. These are Foureenth, Seventeenth and Fifty-sixth streets.

Need Little Work.

The opening of the street, according to the statement, would require no paving or grading for the present, since the line of the old Thirty-third street, that was closed 20 years ago, can sill be seen in the park. Building a small bridge across Antelope creek and maintaining a cinder roadway through the park would be satisfactory to the signers. The distance asked to be opened is three blocks.

Another argument presented is that such a cross-town thoroughfare is needed to premit more direct movement of fire trucks across the area.

Called Best Route.

It is also sai dthat Thirty-third would be the best route for such a street because it is midway between Twenty-seventh and Fortieth, the two streets between which here are no direct crossings from north to south.

Relieved traffic congestion on South street and benefits to industrial growth are other reasons mentioned for the opening of the street.

Granting he request could in no way injure the park, the petitioners state. They as kihat action be taken immediately before some construction takes place that micht obstruct the old line of Thiry-hird hrough the park.

INJURED BOYS ARE IMPROVING

Two N.U. Students Hurt When Automobile Overturns.

Robert E. Carter, 17, and Henry Deines, 20, Norfolk, University of Nebraska students who were injured seriously when the automobile in which they were riding overturned north of Lincoln on the Cornhusker highway Friday afternoon, are improving steadily, physicians attending them in St. Elizabeth's hospital said Saturday afternoon. Two other students, who escaped with minor bruises, are also improved today.

Carter is suffering with an injured kidney, contusions and shock, according to Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, but is improving. Deines sustained crushing chest injuries, but escaped any broken bones, Dr. T. F. McCarthy stated. Indications of internal injuries feared suffered by Deines apparently have subsided. He has rallied well from shock of the crash and injuries, according to Dr. McCarthy. From there they were taken in Castle, Roper and Matthews' ambulance to the hospital.

Carter and Deines with George Cottrell, 21, Fremont, and Dran Bowen, 19, Norfolk, left early Friday afternoon for a week-end visit to their homes. Carter was driving the machine, and in attempting to pass a car about four miles north of

HUSKERS PLAY OKLAHOMA ON NORMAN FIELD

Nebraska Eleven in First Big Six Game of Season.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

OWEN FIELD, NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 11—The Huskers of Nebraska and Oklahoma's Soners apparently were doomed to do their football stuff today under a blistering sun and the withering heat for which Oklahoma's October season is famous, or perhaps, infamous, depending upon the point of view or the quality of one's loyalty to Oklahome weather.

Anyway, the mercury was near the ninety mark as the hour approached for the 2 p. m., kick-off.

An occasional bank of clouds in the western sky gave promise of measure of relief from the heat. A stiff breeze was scudding across the field coming up from the south, and the goal may play an important part in th proceedings on the gridiron, as it inevitably will seriously affect the punting.

The crowd was slowin assembling and at 1:30 o'clock les sthan a thousand spectators had taken seats in the concrete stands. Nevertheless the Oklahoma management presisted in predicting an attendance surpassing fifteen thousand.

Squad On Field.

The Nebraska squad of thirty-four gridmen swarmed on the field at 1:40 o'clock for punting and passing practice and a general limbering up of muscles. As Oklahoma's colors are red and white, whereas Nebraska's are scarlet and cream, the Cornhuskers were garbed in white jerseys, an arrangement permitting the Sooners to sport their red jerseys in the presence of a home gathering.

The starting line-up was:

Nebraska—	Pos.	—Oklahoma
Prucka	LE	Cherry
Rhea	LT	Berry
Koster	LG	Lee
Ely	C	Young

CASS COUNTY TO INVEST IN BONDS

Treasurer Plans Avoid Service Charge To Banks.

Because banks in Cass county insist on making a service charge of 1 per cent on funds deposited by the county with them, County Treasurer John E. Turner will probably convert all the surplus cash in his possession, except such an amount as may be needed to carry on daily business transactions of his office, into United States bonds.

He has already bought $20,000 of such securities and has $80,000 more which could be employed in the same way. Those now held were purchased at a premium, but could be resold at this time for higher price than Treasurer Turner paid for them some months ago. The county is realizing considerably more upon them as interest return than 2 per cent.

Confers With Sommer.

Mr. Turner conferred with State Accountant Sommer at the capitol Saturday in regard to the advisability of making further bond investments. He thinks the taxpayers of Cass county would be dissatisfied if a large sum of idle money belonging to the county were placed in banks at 2 per cen, with the banks making a countercharge of 1 per cent.

Attorney General Sorensen gave an opinion some time ago that county treasurers are responsible under their surety bonds for all the money coming into their hands, and that the state law fixing 2 per cent as the minimum rate of interest on public funds deposited in banks does not sanction any arrangement which would reduce the net return below that figure.

Believes No Criticism.

It was suggested by the state accountant that there could be no basis of valid criticism if the treas-

Formal demand on the bonding company for the W. H. Pearce Co., contractor for the joint university-capitol heating plant, for alleged breach of contract by the Pearce company was being drawn Saturday morning by L. R. Newkirk, assistant attorney general.

The document which will be submitted to the local representative of the company makes a formal demand on the bonding company for for payment of damages the university and capitol commission claim to have suffered by alleged faulty construction of the expansion joints on the steam line from the new power plant to the capitol building. No figures as to amount of damages expected are made.

The instrument is but a formality prior to filing of a suit against the bonding company in the District court here in the opinion of Mr. Newkirk, who is handling the case. He indicated that representatives of the bonding company, the Commercial Casualty Insurance Co. of Kansas City had already orally refused to consider payment of dam-

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Oct. 11—If it ain't one calamity hits us it's another. Did you read where Jessie Livermore, E. F. Hutton, Marshall Field, Frelinghuysen, Sloan of General Motors, Farrell of U. S. Steel and a host of others have been buying their "antique" furniture in England before it was even aged in the wood? They couldn't make these new antique "high boys" fast enough for our new rich "old boys." This expose will bring a hardship on our wealthy. It's liable to force 'em to use American-made furniture. Us middle class over here never worry about having old furniture to point out to our friends. We buy it on payments, and before it's paid for it's plenty antique.

WYMORE MEN DIE WHEN ENGINE HITS AN ABANDONED CAR

Locomotive Overturns Near Reynolds, Neb. Early Saturday Morning, Causing Deaths of Engineer H. R. Lonquest and Fireman William R. Hansmire—Car Left on Track Owned by Kansas Man.

REYNOLDS, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Two were killed and one was injured when Burlington passenger train No. 14, eastbound from Denver to St. Louis, crashed into an abandoned coupe three-fourths of a mile west of here at about 1:45 this morning.

The dead are Harry R. Lonquest, 52, engineer, and William R. Hansmire, 45, fireman, both of Wymore. Both are married, and Hansmire has a daughter, Ruth, eleven years old.

Nearing the end of their run, the two were crushed when the heavy locomotive, derailed by the impact, overturned on its side. The body of the fireman was recovered soon after daybreak, but that of the engineer was not taken from the wreckage until after 9 o'clock.

The injured man was described as Thompson or Johnson of St. Joseph, Mo., baggageman in the first car behind the tender. This car, witnesses said, nosed upward, landed on its side and was headed for a creek bed when its plunge was halted.

Other Cars Derailed.

The second baggage car likewise caromed off the tracks and overturned, but no one in it was injured, as near as could be learned. The smoker, third car from the engine, left the tracks but did not overturn.

Railroad officials and local authorities were seeking the owner or driver of the abandoned coupe, a Ford bearing Washington county, Kas., plates.

The car, they said, was probably 15 feet west of where the highway intersects the tracks, and while they discounted the theory it had been deliberately placed there, they could not determine how it was driven from the highway unless the operator was confused and mistook the crossing for a curve.

The position of the car was determined, Burlington officials said, from marks designating the first impact.

Tracks Torn Up.

The tracks were torn up for nearly 300 feet, and the steel rails were badly twisted. A section worker,

LOCATE OWNER OF ABANDONED AUTO CAUSE OF WRECK

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Tom Menke, 24 year old resident of Morrowville, Kas., was identified today as the driver of the abandoned automobile that derailed a Burlington passenger train at Reynolds, west of here, this morning causing the death of two trainmen, Sheriff F. M. Tippin said this afternoon.

Menke was definitely connected with ownership of the machine from license plates found in the wreckage.

A deputy sheriff sent to his home this morning returned with Menke to this city, where he was questioned by railroad officials and then permitted to return to his home.

He had been to a dance, he said, and had taken a young lady to her home near Reynolds, when approaching the crossing a tire blew out, sending his machine onto the tracks when he lost control.

Confused, he said, as he saw the headlight of the rapidly approaching train, and realizing he could not move his machine which was straddling the rails, he left the machine and returned to his home. Menke told his questioners, officers said, that he was "scared."

ASK OPENING OF STREET IN PARK

Thirty-third Would Be Opened From Sumner To Boulevard.

Openingup of Thirty-third street through Antelope park was requested in a petition filed with the city council Saturday morning by Dr. C. Elmer Frey, whose name heads fifty-eight others on the statement. The stretch would exend souh from Normal bouvelvard to Sumner street.

The petition argues that for the mile distance between Twenty-seventh and Fortieth streets, there is no direc roce from South street to the portions of the city on the north side of the park. It also sets forth that this would make the second straight road acdoss the city from he north to south boundaries, the only other being Twenty-seventh. Only three others, the petition shows, are continuous across the city in this direction, but none of these are straight thoroughfares. These are Foureenth, Seventeenth and Fifty-sixth streets.

Need Little Work.

The opening of the street, according to the statement, would require no paving or grading for the present, since the line of the old Thirty-third street, that was closed 20 years ago, can sill be seen in the park. Building a small bridge across Antelope creek and maintaining a cinder roadway through the park would be satisfactory to the signers. The distance asked to be opened is three blocks.

Another argument presented is that such a cross-town thoroughfare is needed to premit more direct movement of fire trucks across the area.

Called Best Route.

It is also sai dthat Thirty-third would be the best route for such a street because it is midway between Twenty-seventh and Fortieth, the two streets between which here are no direct crossings from north to south.

Relieved traffic congestion on South street and benefits to industrial growth are other reasons mentioned for the opening of the street.

Granting he request could in no way injure the park, the petitioners state. They as kthat action be taken immediately before some construction takes place that might obstruct the old line of Thiry-hird hrough the park .

HUSKERS PLAY OKLAHOMA ON NORMAN FIELD

Nebraska Eleven in First Big Six Game of Season.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

OWEN FIELD, NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 11—The Huskers of Nebraska and Oklahoma's Soners apparently were doomed to do their football stuff today under a blistering sun and the withering heat for which Oklahoma's October season is famous, or perhaps, infamous, depending upon the point of view or the quality of cne's loyalty to Oklahome weather.

Anyway, the mercury was near the ninety mark as the hour approached for the 2 p. m., kick-off.

An occasional bank of clouds in the western sky gave promise of measure of relief from the heat. A stiff breeze was scudding across the field coming up frcm the south, and the goal may play an important part in th proceedings on the gridiron, as it inevitably will seriously affect the punting.

The crowd was slowin assembling and at 1:30 o'clock les sthan a thousand spectators had taken seats in the concrete stands. Nevertheless the Oklahoma management presisted in predicting an attendance surpassing fifteen thousand.

Squad On Field.

The Nebraska squad of thirty-four gridmen swarmed on the field at 1:40 o'clock for punting and passing practice and a general limbering up of muscles. As Oklahoma's colors are red and white, whereas Nebraska's are scarlet and cream, the Cornhuskers were garbed in white jerseys, an arrangement permitting the Sooners to sport their red jerseys in the presence of a home gathering.

The starting line-up was:

"In view of the uncertainty as to the future situation in Brazil," the department said, "it has been felt prudent to have a ship near the zone of disturbance to take American refugees, should such action be necessary for the protection of their lives.

"The U. S. S. Pensacola is therefore being ordered to Guantanamo which is three days less steaming distance to Brazil than Hamptor Roads, where it is at present.

TO MAKE DEMAND OF BONDING FIRM

State Asks Payment from Pearce Co. Bondsmen For Heat Plant.

Will Request Damages for Workmen and Cost of Repaiirng Line.

Formal demand on the bonding company for the W. H. Pearce Co., contractor for the joint university-capitol heating plant, for alleged breach of contract by the Pearce company was being drawn Saturday morning by L. R. Newkirk, assistant attorney general.

The document which will be submitted to the local representative of the company makes a formal demand on the bonding company for for payment of damages the university and capitol commission claim to have suffered by alleged faulty construction of the expansion joints on the steam line from the new power plant to the capitol building. CASS COUNTY TO INVEST IN BONDS

Treasurer Plans Avoid Service Charge To Banks.

Because banks in Cass county insist on making a service charge of 1 per cent on funds deposited by the county with them, County Treasurer John E. Turner will probably convert all the surplus cash in his possession, except such an amount as may be needed to carry on daily business transactions of his office, into United States bonds.

He has already bought $20,000 of such securities and has $80,000 more which could be employed in the same way. Those now held were purchased at a premium, but could be resold at this time for higher price than Treasurer Turner paid for them some months ago. The county is realizing considerably more upon them as interest return than 2 per cent.

Confers With Sommer.

Mr. Turner conferred with State Accountant Sommer at the capitol Saturday in regard to the advisability of making further bond investments. He thinks the taxpayers of Cass county would be dissatisfied if a large sum of idle money belonging to the county were placed in banks at 2 per cen, with the banks making a countercharge of 1 per cent.

Attorney General Sorensen gave an opinion some time ago that county treasurers are responsible under their surety bonds for all the money coming into their hands, and that the state law fixing 2 per cent as the minimum rate of interest on public funds deposited in banks does not sanction any arrangement which would reduce the net return below that figure.

Believes No Criticism.

It was suggested by the state accountant that there could be no basis of valid criticism if the treas-

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Oct. 11—If it ain't one calamity hits us it's another. Did you read where Jessie Livermore, E. F. Hutton, Marshall Field, Frelinghuysen, Sloan of General Motors, Farrell of U. S. Steel and a host of others have been buying their "antique" furniture in England before it was even aged in the wood? They couldn't make these new antique "high boys" fast enough for our new rich "old boys." This expose will bring a hardship on our wealthy. It's liable to force 'em to use American-made furniture. Us middle class over here never worry about having old furniture to point out to our friends. We buy it on payments, and before it's paid for it's plenty antique.

Yours, WILL.

Wall and Broad Still There
Panic, Foolish Word
Stalin's Stake
The Busy Rum Demon

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

The world didn't come to an end yesterday, after all.

When 3 o'clock struck, Broad and Wall streets were still joined together at the corner where the stock exchange looks on Morgan & Co. and they both look on the subtreasury.

Steel decided to go up instead of down, and incidentally, those that sell good American stocks short now will eventually wish that a millstone had been tied about their necks and thrown into the depths of the sea.

The word "panic," one of the most disagreeable in the language, sending a chill to the soul of gamblers and sound business men alike, is, as panics themselves usually are, based on meaningless fear.

The god, Pan, with shoulders and arms of a man, legs of a goat, was heard howling in the woods, causing among the people panic, fear, hence our word panic.

What they really heard was the wind howling in caves or woods. There wasn't any Pan.

There isn't any Pan now in the United States, with its wealth and gigantic resources of gold and other money unimpaired.

But the bears do the howling, and fear does the rest.

We need the angel, minutely described by Mohammed, who saw the angel in the seventh heaven, on that famous midnight trip.

According to Mohammed, the angel had 70,000 heads, each with 70,000 mouths, each mouth had 70,000 tongues, each tongue spoke 70,000 different languages, and all were incessantly employed chanting the praises of the most high.

But even that angel, however, with his 70,000 times 70,000 tongues, multiplied by 70,000 languages, wouldn't be able to comfort some of the frightened pessimists.

Mr. Gilbert, careful observer in Washington, says Stalin, Russia's ruler, has "staked everything on the five-year plan." If the five-year period ends with Russia not changed from a medieval agricultural to a modern industrial state Stalin will fall and Russia will have another revolution.

To make accurate predictions about Russia is hard, and the five-year plan will not fail sufficiently to cause Stalin's fall.

Peter the Great changed Russia from an oriental to an occidental country in a few years. Stalin might make as great a change in another direction.

In any case, Stalin, holding power, knows how to keep it by shooting or exiling opponents. He's a man of action. Anybody that wants his job will have to take it from him.

Russians of the old school talk bravely outside Russia's borders, but they show no inclination to go in.

The Rev. Dr. Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, says wet republicans are conspiring against President Hoover. The nomination of wet Mr. Tuttle for governor of New York is part of a plot to get rid of Mr. Hoover in 1932 and put Dwight W. Morrow also wet, in his place.

It is an interesting vision of wickedness. But Dwight W. Morrow doesn't believe it. Mr. Tuttle doesn't believe it, President Hoover doesn't believe it, and the convention of 1932 will renominate Mr. Hoover.

Otherwise it is a good vision.

The candidates for governor of New York, Roosevelt, democratic; Tuttle, republican, are cheered by heavy registration. Apparently the state is taking an interest in its government this time.

Because of sudden change in the public mind, both republican and democratic candidates are running as "wringing wets."

The vote of the independent bone-dry candidate will shed light on the status of prohibition in the richest, biggest city and most prosperous state of the union.

The demon rum continues to demonstrate increased efficiency in our bootleg area. It was bad enough in old days, when varnish and wood extract were not used to make whisky. Whisky killed you rather slowly.

At present, the process may take anywhere from five minutes to five years.

In Newark, N. J., yesterday, for instance, four people died promptly after drinking bootleg. The "authorities fear that more deaths may follow, as that particular whisky seems to be widely distributed."

It is amazing that adults, not hopeless alcoholics, should drink poisonous concoctions of which they know nothing.

Scotland has gangs and gang wars, according to Glasgow reports. Religious bias, lack of employment, lack of control by parents, and girls are the main causes of Scotch gang warfare.

Whisky, bootleg or otherwise, racketeering, have nothing to do with it.

Protestant-Catholic rivalry in football is one trouble, and Scotch girls, "uncertain, coy and hard to please," another. When a girl leaves one gang for another the two gangs fight. The gangsters are very young, many have never worked in their lives, employment being slack. Fighting provides an outlet for their energies.

TWO WYMORE TRAINMEN ARE KILLED IN CRASH

whose name was not learned, suffered a fractured leg working in the wreckage.

While the force of the collision jostled passengers about in their seats and berths, none was injured and confusion was slight, it was stated.

The train was immediately pulled into Chester and detoured on east. The track will not be cleared before evening, officials said.

Wrecking crews were called from both Wymore and McCook. Supt. L. B. Lyman of the Burlington, was on the scene early to investigate the crash.

Two residents of Reynolds, Lyle Treisert and Harold Wilt, saw the automobile on the tracks and attempted to pull it off. Being unsuccessful in their effort, they attempted to flag the train, but were not successful.

Railroad officials said the car was headed down the tracks, and that the owner had disappeared after abandoning the coupe.

Was Kansas Automobile.

Burlington railroad officials in Lincoln this morning said they had received no report concerning injuries to a baggageman in the train wreck near Reynolds.

A report from the scene of the accident to the local office stated that the driver of the wrecked car was believed to be about 24 years old, tall and slender, but that his name was not known.

The automobile that caused the wreck, officials said, was a model A Ford coupe, bearing Kansas license plated, "37 dash C 1461.

The train was going about 50 miles per hour at the time of the crash.

Plowed Into Bank.

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct 11—H. R. Lonquest, engineer, and William H. Hansmire, fireman, both of Wymore, were killed in a railroad wreck just west of Reynolds about 2 a. m. today.

Burlington passenger No. 14, due at Reynolds at 2:02 a. m., struck a car which was stalled on the tracks, derailing the engine and three coaches.

Lonquest and Hansmire were crushed in the cab, which was demolished against the boiler. The engine plowed into the south bank of the right of way. The baggage coach and mail car were thrown across the tracks and the smoker left the rails on one side. No one else was injured.

The driver of the car had abandoned it on the track when he saw the train coming.

The three passenger coaches stayed on the tracks and were taken back to Red Cloud.

Sister-in-Law Lives Here.

According to Mrs. B. H. Stanley, a sister-in-law of Hansmire, he had been an employe of the railroad for nearly eighteen years, starting as a brakeman and working up to engineer. Mrs. Stanley lives at 900 M street, Havelock.

CASS COUNTY TO INVEST IN BONDS

urer deposited only enough money to carry on his business with the public and paid the service charge upon it to cover the bank's cost of handling his checks. The bulk of the cash, not needed at present, could be used to buy government bonds drawing 3½ to 4½ per cent.

If the bond market should weaken and the price of the securities go down after they had been bought, the county's investment would not turn out so well. In any event, the idle money would probably earn above 1 per cent, State Accountant Sommer told Treasurer Turner.

Giles and Fisher Begin Long Terms For Bank Robbery

John Giles and J. B. Fisher, sentenced early Friday afternoon at Fullerton to 40 years each in the state penitentiary for robbery of the First National bank of Genoa, were returned later in the day to the state penitentiary to begin serving their sentences.

The men were kept under heavy guard both on the trip to Fullerton and return, as a result of the attempted escape of Giles shortly after he and Fisher had been returned to Lincoln last week from Reno, Nev.

Information as to the statements made by the men when questioned by the state sheriff several days before the arraignment at Fullerton but which were not announced until after the men were sentenced were to be mailed to law enforcement agencies in the states in which the men said they operated.

Companion Held in Minnesota.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Oct. 11—(AP)—William Birney, alias Tev O'Connor, held in jail here, was the companion of John Giles, and J. B. Fisher, who admitted a score of crimes before they were sentenced to prison Friday at Fullerton, Neb.

Birney, arrested recently at Melrose, Minn., after an attempt to rob a store there, admitting participating in robberies with Giles and Fisher in Minnesota and North Dakota and also told of accompanying them when Martin Johnson, police chief at Ray, N. D., was fatally wounded last September 4.

According to Birney, one of his companions was responsible for the shooting at Ray which he said occurred when Johnson attempted to question the trio early in the morning of September 4. A bullet lodged in the policeman's spine and he died several days later.

ages the joint commission in charge of the heating plant demands.

Will Include All Costs.

Unless the bonding company adopts a changed position after receiving the formal demand on the part of the state bodies, a suit will be filed soon in the Lancaster county District court, Mr. Newkirk stated Saturday morning.

The general character of the demand and the fact that it makes no attempt to estimate the amount of the damages the university regents and capitol commission believe they suffered, obviates the necessity of its detailing the damages claimed. Mr. Newkirk indicated Saturday, however, that both damages resulting from death of two workmen when one of the expansion joints exploded and the cost of replacing the joints along the entire line would both be included in any final demand for damages.

She was especially kind to small children, Dr. Aitken said. This was manifest in the children's playground which she had erected near her home and to which all of the neighborhood children were invited to come and partake of recreation and play.

EGG MEN ATTACK FUTURES TRADING

State Poultry Association Takes Stand at Session Here; Weaver Speaks at Banquet.

Condemning all trading on futures in the egg industry as a wasteful practice destructive of legitimate trade rights and harmful to the public, the Nebraska Poultry and Egg association, meeting in annual convention at the Cornhusker Friday, went on record as opposing sales by "non-owners" of eggs. More than seventy-five members of the organization were present.

It was resolved by the convention that all of the marketing exchanges be requested to so modify their rules as to prevent, hereafter, all future trading or offers to trade in eggs except and only when such sale or offer is made in quantity of a submitted bona fide warehouse receipt showing actual ownership of the eggs. It was further ordered that a copy of this resolution be sent to each exchange on which eggs are sold in the state.

Will Display Prices.

The association voted unanimously to extend an expression of appreciation to the New York Mercantile Exchange for its action in temporarily modifying its rules so as to stop such practices. This was coupled with the expressed desire of the convention that the modification in rules be made permanent "and that said exchange use their best efforts to bring about like changes in rules on all exchanges where future sales in non-existing eggs or by non-owners are permitted."

It was also urged in resolutions passed at the convention that grocers and marketers of eggs be asked to publicly and freely publish, display and announce prices, that the present low price of eggs may be widely known. The association pledged itself to carry out a general campaign to induce a wide-spread increase in the consumption of eggs.

Weaver Speaks.

The convention was closed by a banquet featuring Governor Weaver, who spoke to more than 150 on the improvement of rivers to bring popoulation to the middle-west and also to cheapen the cost of transportation. He also stated that with the agriculture resources of Nebraska, the state holds a splendid position in rank of production with other states. With the largest small grain crop that has ever been produced in Nebraska and the late corn now matured assures a practical normal crop.

"In recent years our dairying has progressed rapidly. We also are producing $30,000,000 worth of poultry and eggs each year for which our state is ordinarily fitted," he said. "Because Nebraska produces all kinds of small grains and grasses and has an ample and pure water supply as well as a moderate and equitable climate, the state will continue to maintain high rank in this line of production".

O. V. McCraken was toastmaster. Virginia Vernon Butler, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Butler, entertained the group with some impersonations. She was accompanied by Kathryn Recroft. A trio composed of Valorita Callen, violin; Beth Miller, piano, and Willa Given, 'cello, also entertained. Later in the evening a dance was held and Jean Marie Swift performed. Miss Swift was accompanied by Mrs. Fleda Ziegenbein.

In any case, Stalin, holding power, knows how to keep it by shooting or exiling opponents. He's a man of action. Anybody that wants his job will have to take it from him.

Russians of the old school talk bravely outside Russia's borders, but they show no inclination to go in.

The Rev. Dr. Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, says wet republicans are conspiring against President Hoover. The nomination of wet Mr. Tuttle for governor of New York is part of a plot to get rid of Mr. Hoover in 1932 and put Dwight W. Morrow also wet, in his place.

It is an interesting vision of wickedness. But Dwight W. Morrow doesn't believe it, Mr. Tuttle doesn't believe it, President Hoover doesn't believe it, and the convention of 1932 will renominate Mr. Hoover.

Otherwise it is a good vision.

The candidates for governor of New York, Roosevelt, democratic; Tuttle, republican, are cheered by heavy registration. Apparently the state is taking an interest in its government this time.

Because of sudden change in the public mind, both republican and democratic candidates are running as "wringing wets."

The vote of the independent bone-dry candidate will shed light on the status of prohibition in the richest, biggest city and most prosperous state of the union.

The demon rum continues to demonstrate increased efficiency in our bootleg area. It was bad enough in old days, when varnish and wood extract were not used to make whisky. Whisky killed you rather slowly.

At present, the process may take anywhere from five minutes to five years.

In Newark, N. J., yesterday, for instance, four people died promptly after drinking bootleg. The "authorities fear that more deaths may follow, as that particular whisky seems to be widely distributed."

It is amazing that adults, not hopeless alcoholics, should drink poisonous concoctions of which they know nothing.

Scotland has gangs and gang wars, according to Glasgow reports.

Religious bias, lack of employment, lack of control by parents, and girls are the main causes of Scotch gang warfare.

Whisky, bootleg or otherwise, racketeering, have nothing to do with it.

Protestant-Catholic rivalry in football is one trouble, and Scotch girls, "uncertain, coy and hard to please," another. When a girl leaves one gang for another the two gangs fight. The gangsters are very young, many have never worked in their lives, employment being slack. Fighting provides an outlet for their energies.

TWO WYMORE TRAINMEN ARE KILLED IN CRASH

whose name was not learned, suffered a fractured leg working in the wreckage.

While the force of the collision jostled passengers about in their seats and berths, none was injured and confusion was slight, it was stated.

The train was immediately pulled into Chester and detoured on east. The track will not be cleared before evening, officials said.

Wrecking crews were called from both Wymore and McCook. Supt. L. B. Lyman of the Burlington, was on the scene early to investigate the crash.

Two residents of Reynolds, Lyle Treisert and Harold Wilt, saw the automobile on the tracks and attempted to pull it off. Being unsuccessful in their effort, they attempted to flag the train, but were not successful.

Railroad officials said the car was headed down the tracks, and that the owner had disappeared after abandoning the coupe.

Was Kansas Automobile.

Burlington railroad officials in Lincoln this morning said they had received no report concerning injuries to a baggageman in the train wreck near Reynolds.

A report from the scene of the accident to the local office stated that the driver of the wrecked car was believed to be about 24 years old, tall and slender, but that his name was not known.

The automobile that caused the wreck, officials said, was a model A Ford coupe, bearing Kansas license plated, "37 dash C 1461.

The train was going about 50 miles per hour at the time of the crash.

Plowed Into Bank.

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 11—H. R. Lonquest, engineer, and William H. Hansmire, fireman, both of Wymore, were killed in a railroad wreck just west of Reynolds about 2 a. m. today.

Burlington passenger No. 14, due at Reynolds at 2:02 a. m., struck a car which was stalled on the tracks, derailing the engine and three coaches.

Lonquest and Hansmire were crushed in the cab, which was demolished against the boiler. The engine plowed into the south bank of the right of way. The baggage coach and mail car were thrown across the tracks and the smoker left the rails on one side. No one else was injured.

The driver of the car had abandoned it on the track when he saw the train coming.

The three passenger coaches stayed on the tracks and were taken back to Red Cloud.

Sister-in-Law Lives Here.

According to Mrs. B. H. Stanley, a sister-in-law of Hansmire, he had been an employe of the railroad for nearly eighteen years, starting as a brakeman and working up to engineer. Mrs. Stanley lives at 900 M street, Havelock.

CASS COUNTY TO INVEST IN BONDS

urer deposited only enough money to carry on his business with the public and paid the service charge upon it to cover the bank's cost of handling his checks. The bulk of the cash, not needed at present, could be used to buy government bonds drawing 3½ to 4½ per cent.

If the bond market should weaken and the price of the securities go down after they had been bought, the county's investment would not turn out so well. In any event, the idle money would probably earn above 1 per cent, State Accountant Sommer told Treasurer Turner.

The men were kept under heavy guard both on the trip to Fullerton and return, as a result of the attempted escape of Giles shortly after he and Fisher had been returned to Lincoln last week from Reno, Nev.

ages the joint commission in charge of the heating plant demands.

Will Include All Costs.

Unless the bonding company adopts a changed position after receiving the formal demand on the part of the state bodies, a suit will be filed soon in the Lancaster county District court, Mr. Newkirk stated Saturday morning.

The general character of the demand and the fact that it makes no attempt to estimate the amount of the damages the university regents and capitol commission believe they suffered, obviates the necessity of its detailing the damages claimed. Mr. Newkirk indicated Saturday, however, that both damages resulting from death of two workmen when one of the expansion joints exploded and the cost of replacing the joints along the entire line would both be included in any final demand for damages.

EGG MEN ATTACK FUTURES TRADING

State Poultry Association Takes Stand at Session Here; Weaver Speaks at Banquet.

Condemning all trading on futures in the egg industry as a wasteful practice destructive of legitimate trade rights and harmful to the public, the Nebraska Poultry and Egg association, meeting in annual convention at the Cornhusker Friday, went on record as opposing sales by "non-owners" of eggs. More than seventy-five members of the organization were present.

It was resolved by the convention that all of the marketing exchanges be requested to so modify their rules as to prevent, hereafter, all future trading or offers to trade in eggs except and only when such sale or offer is made in quantity of a submitted bona fide warehouse receipt showing actual ownership of the eggs. It was further ordered that a copy of this resolution be sent to each exchange on which eggs are sold in the state.

Will Display Prices.

The association voted unanimously to extend an expression of appreciation to the New York Mercantile Exchange for its action in temporarily modifying its rules so as to stop such practices. This was coupled with the expressed desire of the convention that the modification in rules be made permanent "and that said exchange use their best efforts to bring about like changes in rules on all exchanges where future sales in non-existing eggs or by non-owners are permitted."

It was also urged in resolutions passed at the convention that grocers and marketers of eggs be asked to publicly and freely publish, display and announce prices, that the present low price of eggs may be widely known. The association pledged itself to carry out a general campaign to induce a wide-spread increase in the consumption of eggs.

Weaver Speaks.

The convention was closed by a banquet featuring Governor Weaver, who spoke to more than 150 on the improvement of rivers to bring popoulation to the middlewest and also to cheapen the cost of transportation. He also stated that with the agriculture resources of Nebraska, the state holds a splendid position in rank of production with other states. With the largest small grain crop that has ever been produced in Nebraska and the late corn now matured assures a practical normal crop.

"In recent years our dairying has progressed rapidly We also are producing $30,000,000 worth of poultry and eggs each year for which our state is ordinarily fitted," he said. "Because Nebraska produces all kinds of small grains and grasses and has an ample and pure water supply as well as a moderate and equitable climate, the state will continue to maintain high rank in this line of production".

O. V. McCraken was toastmaster. Virginia Vernon Butler, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Butler, entertained the group with some impersonations. She was accompanied by Kathryn Recroft. A trio composed of Valorita Callen, violin; Beth Miller, piano, and Willa Given, 'cello, also entertained. Later in the evening a dance was held and Jean Marie Swift performed. Miss Swift was accompanied by Mrs. Fleda Ziegenbein.

INSURANCE MEN ATTEND BANQUET

Speaker Hits Compulsory Auto Liability Insurance.

OMAHA, Oct. 11—(AP)— Friday night the insurance men of Nebraska gathered around the festive banquet board with C. R. McCotter chairman of the insurance division of the Omaha chamber of commerce presiding.

James L. Madden, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, was the principal speaker. His subject was "Insurance as a Social and Economic Stabilizer."

At the afternoon session, Edward D. Lawson, manager of the western marine department of the Firemen's Fund Insurance company of Chisurance, covering pioneering in avicago, spoke on "Inland Marine" Ination insurance and policies protectgolf trophies and wedding presents.

Compulsory automobile liability drew criticism from Spencer Welton, vice president of the Massachusetts Bonding and insurance company, Boston, in an address during the afternoon.

"Massachusetts was the first state to fall for it,' he said. "Companies found that the loss rate increased sharply and that they could not select their risks. The public didn't like the law because they found that accidents did not diminish. In Massachusetts this compulsory liability law is nothing but a political football."

Mr. Welton also opposed vigorously the entrance of the government into private business. He complimented Lloyd Dort for his action in declaring before the meeting that insurance should be taken out of politics.

"We don't give our insurance commissioners the right kind of support, or pay them the right kind of salaries, he stated.

ST. PAUL, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—At a meeting of the Loup Valley Editorial association here Friday, attended by about 40 publishers of interior Nebraska, a resolution heartily endorsing the road building program of the state highway department under State Engineer Roy Cochran was passed, together with approval of the proposed one additional cent in gasoline tax.

The directors were also asked, if possible, to establish a check of the use of free publicity in papers of Nebraska.

TO REORGANIZE NORFOLK BANK

Plans To Be Laid Before State Department Monday.

Would Mean Immediate Payment 80 Per Cent Deposits.

NORFOLK, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Proposed reopening of the Nebraska State bank here, closed July 22, today hinged upon two things, those interested said.

One is indorsement of organization plans submitted by J. J. Delay of Beresford, S. D., and a proposal to sell in Norfolk, 400 shares of tsock at $125.

Delay's offer, it was said, was made subject to a recheck of the bank assets, which was completed last night, the former announcing the audit was satisfactory and that he was ready to go ahead with refinancing plans.

The reorganization plan, it was stated, will be submitted to the banking department at Lincoln Monday.

If the proposed plan is accepted, the bank committee said, depositors will be paid 80 per cent of their accounts, the balance will be held in a contingent fund derived from slow assets.

Adoption of the plan will also mean that construction will continue upon the bank building. This was stopped at the time of closing.

The state banking department today was awaiting final word from a Norfolk committee working on reorganization plans contemplating reopening of the Nebraska State bank, Clarence G. Bliss, secretary, said.

There's a trend toward more formality this fall--

INSURANCE MEN ATTEND BANQUET

Speaker Hits Compulsory Auto Liability Insurance.

OMAHA, Oct. 11—(AP)— Friday night the insurance men of Nebraska gathered around the festive banquet board with C. R. McCotter chairman of the insurance division of the Omaha chamber of commerce presiding.

James L. Madden, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, was the principal speaker. His subject was "Insurance as a Social and Economic Stabilizer."

At the afternoon session, Edward D. Lawson, manager of the western marine department of the Firemen's Fund Insurance company of Chisurance, covering pioneering in avicago, spoke on "Inland Marine" Ination insurance and policies protectgolf trophies and wedding presents.

Compulsory automobile liability drew criticism from Spencer Welton, vice president of the Massachusetts Bonding and insurance company, Boston, in an address during the afternoon.

"Massachusetts was the first state to fall for it,' he said. "Companies found that the loss rate increased sharply and that they could not select their risks. The public didn't like the law because they found that accidents did not diminish. In Massachusetts this compulsory liability law is nothing but a political football."

Mr. Welton also opposed vigorously the entrance of the government into private business. He complimented Lloyd Dort for his action in declaring before the meeting that insurance should be taken out of politics.

"We don't give our insurance commissioners the right kind of support, or pay them the right kind of salaries, he stated.

EDITORS BOOST ROAD PROGRAM

Loup Valley Association Favors Five Cent Gas Tax.

ST. PAUL, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—At a meeting of the Loup Valley Editorial association here Friday, attended by about 40 publishers of interior Nebraska, a resolution heartily endorsing the road building program of the state highway department under State Engineer Roy Cochran was passed, together with approval of the proposed one additional cent in gasoline tax.

The state press association board of directors also, on motion, was asked to take up with the University authorities the matter of free publicity and to take steps looking to the centralizing of the office of Secretary Ole Buck as a medium for all justifiable free promotion through the press. The directors were also asked, if possible, to establish a check of the use of free publicity in papers of Nebraska.

The board of directors of the state association, at a meeting called here, took these matters under advisement. The directors also took steps looking toward the repeal of the constitution provision necessitating every alternate press meeting being held at Lincoln. The latter board adjourned to meet at Lincoln Nov. 7.

Editor Sorensen, Dannebrog, was elected president; Editor Lorrkosky of St. Paul was named vice president; Mrs. Grace Rood, Loup City, was chosen secretary-treasurer, all of the Loup Valley association. The next meeting will be held in Grand Island.

TO REORGANIZE NORFOLK BANK

Plans To Be Laid Before State Department Monday.

Would Mean Immediate Payment 80 Per Cent Deposits.

NORFOLK, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—Proposed reopening of the Nebraska State bank here, closed July 22, today hinged upon two things, those interested said.

One is indorsement of organization plans submitted by J. J. Delay of Beresford. S. D., and a proposal to sell in Norfolk, 400 shares of tsock at $125.

Delay's offer, it was said, was made subject to a recheck of the bank assets, which was completed last night, the former announcing the audit was satisfactory and that he was ready to go ahead with refinancing plans.

The reorganization plan, it was stated, will be submitted to the banking department at Lincoln Monday.

If the proposed plan is accepted, the bank committee said, depositors will be paid 80 per cent of their accounts, the balance will be held in a contingent fund derived from slow assets.

Adoption of the plan will also mean that construction will continue upon the bank building. This was stopped at the time of closing.

The state banking department today was awaiting final word from a Norfolk committee working on reorganization plans contemplating reopening of the Nebraska State bank, Clarence G. Bliss, secretary, said.

OUT IN THE OPEN.

The real objectives of the Boulder dam project have been brought out in the open at last. During the long fight waged in congress over authorizing an appropriation of $165,000,000 of tax funds to cover the expenses of the undertaking, the country heard much about the flood perils in the lower Colorado river valley. It was said that loss of life, and the appalling destruction of property of thousands of farm homes might be the penalty for failure to take the Colorado under control.

But in the announcement of civil service examinations to fill positions created by actual construction of the Boulder Dam project, this statement appears in the bulletin from Washington: "This huge task has three purposes, namely, reclamation of arid lands, power development and flood control." It would appear that the safety and protection of people, who settled in the lower Colorado river valley, is of far less importance than making a desert bloom or supplying cheap power to the city of Los Angeles and other California cities.

It is not the Boulder Dam project but the methods employed to ram it through congress, and the precedent which it establishes, which are seriously open to question. There is something inspiring in the courage of a people to overcome the natural obstacles placed in their path. Every reclamation project is a declaration of war against perverse and obstinate nature. To reclaim the sun scorched, parched desert, and to make it bloom and produce is a goal which may justly claim the enthusiasm and support of the entire nation.

Even the fact we are at this time suffering from an over production of grain and most everything else which comes from the farm might be overlooked. There will be a day when the American people will be glad they have Boulder Dam. They will have need of the produce which comes from the rich farms along the lower Colorado. Years ago, however, the federal government definitely adopted a reclamation plan. Under its provisions thousands of acres of sandy soil in the western and northwestern part of Nebraska have been made to produce. In every instance, heretofore, the benefited lands have been compelled to hear a part of the cost of the improvement.

What irritates in connection with Boulder Dam is the fact that while North Platte valley citizens in Nebraska have been hard pressed during the last ten years to pay their assessments for irrigation, those interested in the Boulder Dam project will tap the federal treasury for the full amount of the development. If the Boulder Dam farmer is to have the water brought to his land without cost, paying only yearly maintenance charges, then in all fairness the Department of Interior should adopt a similar policy with respect to the irrigation projects in western Nebraska. There is no equity in the government doing for a favored section what it has consistently refused to do in earlier reclamation development.

Boulder Dam, it has been estimated, will cost $165,000,000. With the sole exception of the Panama canal it represents the greatest engineering project ever undertaken by the federal government. The chances are that it will cost much more than $165,000,000 before it is completed. That has been the experience in private as well as public undertakings. Ordinarily the costs run far in excess of the original computations. In the case of land owners in the North Platte district, assessments were more than double what the people had been led to believe they would be.

But Boulder Dam will not entail too great a price in the event its full possibilities are realized as undoubtedly they will be. The soil in the valley of the Lower Colorado is wonderfully fertile, and in a semi-tropical climate capable of producing immense quantities of foodstuffs. If a portion of the cost of it is paid by benefited land owners then the final real objection to it will be removed.

AN AVOIDABLE DANGER TO CHILDREN.

Several years ago, after a series of fatal automobile accidents had occurred on the streets of Lincoln with children as the victims, the board of education and the city commission took joint action to safeguard boys and girls on their way to and from school against a recurrence of these sad incidents. Present regulations, which provide for placing temporary stop signs at intersections near buildings when the young folks are arriving at or leaving school, have brought very good results. Watchfulness of teachers over the younger pupils has also helped a great deal.

There still remains, however, a condition not within the control of school authorities which ought to be corrected before additional juvenile deaths take place. This is the habit of children playing in the street near their homes outside of school hours. Regardless of what may be said about the right of boys and girls to have their fun—a right which nobody will dispute—there is no good reason for permitting them to expose themselves to the risk of being killed or maimed by indulging in pastimes in the path of moving vehicles.

Where parents fail to look after their offspring, it is not surprising to see comparatively small children playing tag and other games on the pavement. Of course, when so engaged, they lose all sense of danger and are just as likely as not to run in front of an approaching car, or perhaps to crash into it from the side. Since drivers are not all so careful as they might be, and some brakes are not in such condition as to respond immediately to pressure on a foot pedal, the hazard involved in street sports is quite apparent.

Even boys in their teens who get out in the streets and throw or kick footballs around are not immune from the tendency to disregard their precarious situation. An ambitious youth intent on catching a forward pass or a punt is apt to get himself into a dangerous situation. That no serious casualty of this kind has taken place recently is due more to good fortune than anything else. But some day it is bound to happen; and when it does there will be another public outcry against the authorities who allow the streets to be used as playgrounds.

The authorities must accept their share of blame for anything of this kind which may occur. However, they are not the only ones at fault. Fathers and mothers who allow their children to indulge in street games have the primary responsibility in the matter. Far better would it be to keep the youngsters inside their own yards, even at the sacrifice of healthful exercise, than to let them go where they may be struck down and left dead or crippled for life.

But it is not necessary to deprive the boys and girls of their play in order to preserve them from danger. Lincoln is not such a congested city that places for sport and recreation are lacking. There are many spacious backyards and vacant lots, and every schoolhouse yard is available as a public playground after school hours. There are also the municipal parks, the American Legion square, and other spots available for open air activities of children.

Now is the time, before any fatal accident has taken place, to put a curb on the dangerous practice of playing in the streets. Police and parents should cooperate in stopping it before some unfortunate child is run down.

CONSTRUCTIVE ECONOMICS.

There are those who think that nothing can be done to alter the conditions of supply and demand which bring about peculiar economic conditions—that man must forever remain the slave of pendulum-like reactions in the business world. The business depression which followed the phenomenal prosperity period from 1923 to 1929 has seemed to the more pessimistically inclined a convincing evidence of their theory.

A study of some of the recent data compiled by the department of commerce and outlined in a talk by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the department, furnishes an unexpected revelation of what constructive economics can do to relieve an unpleasant situation.

That it has been relieved is evident to all observers of general business conditions, despite the fact that the country has not made a complete adjustment from the collapse, largely psychological which many felt occurred.

Dr. Klein presents an interesting review of what has been done in the way of construction to aid the 1930 situation. It is generally believed that all businesses suffered a great falling off in 1930. The commerce official, however, points out that over four hundred million dollars more was spent during the first six months of 1930 for public works and utilities construction than in the same period of 1929.

"That extra four hundred million dollars translated into bricks and lumber and mortar and jobs all over the country most certainly did ease the whole business situation," declares Dr. Klein.

The figures are interesting. This country, in the first half of the present year, spent more than $360,000,000 in highway construction. It expended nearly two hundred millions for school buildings. Pipelines constructed during the period cost $105,000,000. Railway construction including railway bridges cost $130,000,000 and other bridges cost $85,000,000. Public building saw the expenditure of $62,000,000. Sewerage systems cost $50,000,000 and water-front developments $42,000,000.

These activities represented a substantial contribution to that wage return which is the only fundamental insurance of good business—a reasonable distribution of the capacity to buy. It could not be expected that everything would recover at once. Drain a man's financial resources and he must have time to recover even after he has a job before he can be the potential buyer he once was. But these activities did represent a substantial contribution of directive effort to relieve unemployment.

Indirectly they helped Nebraska by improving the general business tone of the nation as a whole. Add to this general elevation of attitude and of situation throughout the country, the splendid agricultural year which Nebraska has experienced and its manifold opportunities to realize on its production this year, and the reasons for abundant optimism as to the prospects for Nebraska for the coming year are evident.

OUTSTANDING CLUB WORKER IS NAMED

Purbaugh Selects Lois Roeder of Bennet as County Champion; Was in Three Clubs.

Selection of Lois Roeder, 16, of Bennet as Lancaster county's outstanding individual 4-H club worker for this year was announced Saturday by County Agent J. F. Purbaugh. As a reward for her activities she will go to the International Livestock show and Boys' and Girls' 4-H congress, held jointly in Chicago during the first week in December. Her expenses for transportation both going and returning will be provided through courtesy of the Rock Island railroad.

Miss Roeder took part during the last year in baby beef, poultry and sewing projects according to Mr. Purbaugh. He stated that this was her third year as an active member in baby beef and sewing clubs and that it was her fifth season as a participant in poultry projects. In addition she has been active in various judging demonstrations.

She is at present attending the agricultural college at the University of Nebraska. This is the first year for some time that a girl has been selected as the county's outstanding club member Mr. Purbaugh pointed out.

This is all than can be told:

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1930, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

When my son was 16 he spent too much time with a certain girl and I phoned her parents, asking them to discourage his visits, but my protests were unavailing. Her mother defied me. The expected happened and I have to confess I supplied the money for an illegal operation, being very furious with the girl's family for disregarding my wishes. Ought I to have my son m arry her? Did I do wrong to pay? Shall I try again to sever the association between the two.

Kindly omit address.

ANSWER.

I do not know all the facts of your grave problem, but certainly you did wrong and laid yourself open to a severe legal penalty by aiding and abetting an illegal operation. Of course, the alternative was marriage, to which the youth of the parties may have seemed an insuperable barrier. Moreover, the chances do not favor happy wedlock when courtship is as immature and degrading as it was in this case.

Yet you confess that the unfortunate pair still hold together. And if their sad experience has more closely welded them on the spiritual side of marriage I feel inclined to advise it for them. Much is due the girl who has scarcely known the advantages of youth and has also born the brunt of this calamity, due to parental folly, and to that glaring pretense dubbed "the new freedom." Nobody can have real freedom once they step beyond its boundaries. What such trespassers do get, her harsh experience can testify.

Be generous to her. Crucify your prejudices. Remember that she has suffered. If she is willing to marry your son he ought to be eager to marry her. The two mothers do not shine in this business. But both of you may partly redeem the fearful mistakes of the past by uniting your efforts to settle the young couple in life.

QUESTION.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

Have you ever had any psychic experience? If so, what was the effect on you? Do you believe we can prove the existence of a spiritual world by those experiences?

ANSWER.

I have not had any such experiences, therefore I have no personal testimony to offer upon the matter.

Evidence in favor of psychic manifestations should not be summarily dismissed by those who are ignorant of them. Sir Oliver Lodge is a distinguished scientist. Sir Conan Doyle was an equally distinguished observer of human life. The late Professor Crookes, also an eminent scientist, was a close and logical thinker. All three emphatically accept the reality of communication with the discarnate. The list of prominent individuals in various walks of life who concur in their views could be multiplied indefinitely.

Lodge asserts that by employing proper means you can find that the person you knew is still in existence, that he remembers what has happened here, that his personality survives the shock of bodily death, with the resulting inference that man's memory and personality do not depend on his physical organism.

They are not lodged in the brain, which is the material instrumentality for recording nerve reactions. This instrument may be damaged, but the mind which operates it is not necessarily destroyed as a consequence. Professor William James also argued that personality was independent of all its earthly means of manifestation.

The entire question is one of evidence. So far the proof reported does not appear to me to establish beyond all reasonable doubt the actuality of this kind of communication, but one should keep an open mind on the issue.

QUESTION.

Buffalo, N. Y.

What did the Lausanne conference intend to do and what has it actually accomplished?

ANSWER.

It met, thanks to Bishop Brent of blessed memory, for the purpose of considering matters of faith and order, but emphatically refused to define and discuss conditions of future reunion of the churches. It sought to determine those fundamental agreements and disagreements existing between the churches represented at the conference, as representative of all Christendom with the exception of the Roman Catholic church, which was not officially present thereat.

Its reports upon The Call to Unity, The Message of the Church to the World, The Nature of the Church, The Church's Common Confession of Faith, The Ministry of the Church, The Sacraments, and The Unity of Christendom and the Relation thereto of Existing Churches, are printed and may be obtained from the officials of the conference.

Its continuation has been effected by the formation of a committee which meets annually. The session for 1929 was held at Maloja, Switzerland, and now awaits a further report on the issues named above, which will be submitted to the gathering in the early autumn of this year of 1930. It would seem to be the wisest course for all who share Bishop Brent's spirit and aim in this great undertaking to postpone definite acts pertaining to the further unity of Christendom until that report appears.

"THE SEA BRIDE"

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE.

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

Chapter XLVI.

"Brander?" Faith cried in a passion. "Brander? The thief that's lying now in the irons I put upon him? Him? Him you say I love?

The very force of her anger should have told Dan'l the truth; but he was so blind that it served only to rejoice him.

"I knew it!" he cried. "I knew it! So you love me, Faith."

"Must a woman always be loving?" she demanded wearily.

"Aye, Faith. It's the nature of them always to be loving—some one. With you, Faith. It's me. Listen and see!"

"Dan'l," she said steadily, "what's the end of all this? What's the end of it all? What would you have me do?

"Love me," he told her.

"What else?"

"See the truth," he said. "Under stand that the Sally is lost—fast aground here to rot her bones away. See that it's hopeless and wild to stick to her. We'll get out the boats. You and I and Roy and a man or two will take one; the others may have the other craft. It's not fifty miles to—"

"Leave the Sally?" she demanded.

"Yes."

"I'll not talk with you, Dan'l. I'll never do that!"

"There's the ambergris," he reminded her. "We'll take that. It will recompense old Jonathan for his Sally and her oil.'

"No!"

Her word was so sharp that it checked him. He was up on his feet, bending above her, pouring out his pleadings; but she threw him into silence with that last word. The red flush of passion in his face blackened to something with the heat in him. He bent a little nearer, while her eyes met his steadily; and his hands dropped and gripped her arms above the elbows. She came to her feet, facing him.

"Dan'l!" she said warningly.

"If you'll not go because you will, you'll go because you must," he told her huskily and harshly. "You'll whine at my feet afore I'm through with you. You'll beg me to marry you in the end!"

If she had been able to hold still, to hold his eyes with hers, she might have mastered him even then; for in any match of courage against courage, she was the stronger. But the horror of him overwhelmed her; she tried to wrench away. Her struggle fired him. In a battle of strength and strength she had no chance. He swung her against his chest, and she flung her head back that her lips might escape him. He laughed. His lips were dry and twitching as she fought to be away from him. He held her for an instant, held her striving body against his own to revel in its struggles.

He had her thus in his arms, forcing her back, crushing her, when the door flung open and Roy Kilcup stood here. The boy cried in desperate warning:

"Dan'l, Brander is—"

Then he comprehended that which he saw. He screamed with the fury of an animal, and flung himself at Dan'l, tearing at the man with his strength of a boy.

Dan'l had laid his plans well; he had felt sure of success; but he had not counted on trouble with Faith. He thought, after their failure to float the Sally, she would be crushed and ready to fall into his arms, ready at least to yield to his advice and come away and leave the ship where it lay.

After that Dan'l counted on separating the crew by losing the other boats. The ambergris would be in his; he would master the men with him. Faith and the treasure would be his.

Brander was to stay in the Sally, ironed in the after 'tween-decks. Dan'l thought Brander was destroyed by the evidence of his thieving; he no longer feared the man.

Not all the crew would go with him when he left the ship Old Tichel had refused.

"I've waited all my days to be cap'n of a craft," Tichel declared. "With you gone, I'm master of the Sally. I'll stay and get the feeling of it."

And Dan'l was willing to let him stay. Willis Cox agreed to do as Faith decided. Long Jim, the harpooner, was loyal to Tichel. Loum, Dan'l did not trust. The man might stay with Brander if he chose.

But Dan'l had on his side Kellick, the steward; and Yella Boy, and Silva, and four seamen from forward, and seven of those who had shipped as green hands. Silva hated Brander no less than Dan'l, for Brander had taken the mate's berth that Silva had hoped to get. Silva was Dan'l's right-hand man in his plans. And Roy, Dan'l thought, was his own to do with as he chose.

Mauger got some whisperings of all this, of course, in the fo'c'sle. There was no effort to keep it secret from him; no effort to keep the matter secret at all. Dan'l had said openly that if the Sally did not float he was for deserting her; those might come with him who chose. Save Mauger, there were none openly against him. Tichel would stay, Willis waited on Faith's word, but the rest held off and swung neither one way nor another.

All of which Mauger, with infinite stealth, told Brander, sneaking down into the after 'tween-decks at peril of his skin, night after night. Brander, fast-ironed there, and taking his calamities very philosophically, praised the little man.

"Keep your eyes open," he said. "Bring me any word you get. Warn me in full time. And—find me a good, keen file."

Mauger fetched the file, pilfering it from the tool chest of Eph Hitch, the cooper. Brander worked patiently at his bonds, submitting without protest to his captivity.

That night of the full moon, after they had failed to float the Sally, Dan'l called Silva and bade him prepare the boats.

"Get food and water into them," he said. "Take plenty. Make them ready. Tell the rest of the men to lower if they've a mind. I'm for leaving."

Silva grinned his understanding. He asked a question.

"I'm going down now to convince her," Dan'l said. "She'll come, no fear."

He went below and left Silva to prepare the boats. Old Tichel was on deck, but Willis had gone below. Tichel did not molest Silva. Discipline had evaporated on the Sally; it was every man for himself. Those who were for leaving ship were hotly impatient; and one boatful of men lowered and drew slowly away toward the mouth of the cove where the Sally lay.

There was no wind; the sea was glassy; and their oars stirred the water into sparkling showers like jewels. Kellick, Yella Boy, and four seamen were in that boat. Five of the green hands and Tinch, the cook, caught the infection, dumped food and water into another craft, and followed.

Silva got his boat overside. He had with him two men—men of his choosing, who had signed as green hands, but were stalwarts now. He made sure the boat was ready, then stood in her, holding with one hand to the rail, and waiting for Dan'l to come with Faith. Roy, who would also go in this boat, was on the after deck.

The men in the two craft that had already left the ship were lying on their oars half a mile away, watching the Sally. In all their minds was the thought of the ambergris. They had no notion of leaving that behind; and they did not mean to be tricked out of their share in it. Silva could see the boats idly drifting.

Mauger slipped down to Brander and told him what was afoot.

"Two boats gone a'ready," he said. "Silva waiting for Mr. Tobey now."

"Where's she?" Brander asked.

"In the cabin. Mr. Tobey went to her. He've not come up yet."

Brander considered.

"Fetch a handspike," he said. "It's time I took a hand."

When Mauger had crawled on deck and returned with what Brander wanted, he pried open the filed irons, stood up, and shook himself to ease the ache of his muscles.

"Now," he said, "let's go see!"

He reached the deck, Mauger at his heels, and started aft. Silva, head above the rail, marked Brander's movements, and signed his two men to follow, and swung up aboard the Sally. Roy saw Brander and leaped down to the cabin to warn Dan'l. Brander followed him. Mauger, at Brander's back, heard Silva's rushing feet and turned to meet his charge.

Brander was at the foot of the companion-ladder when Roy threw open the after cabin door; he saw, as Roy saw. Dan'l gripping Faith so brutally. He heard Roy's cry; then Roy leaped to grapple Dan'l.

Roy's eyes were opened in that moment; he had become a man. Dan'l had told him they would leave the ship, had told him nothing more. The boy had been full of anger against his sister, and Dan'l counted on this, and feared no trouble from him. He forgot that the anger of a boy is not overstrong. It was swept away now in a lightning flash of understanding. When Roy saw Faith in Dan'l's arms, helplessly fighting against his kisses, he leaped to protect her as if there had never been harsh words between them.

The boy gripped Dan'l from behind. For an instant more Dan'l clung to Faith. His encircling arm tightened about her, so that she thought her ribs would crack. When he flung her away she was breathless and sick with nausea, and she fell on the floor and lay there gasping for breath. Dan'l flung her away and swung on Roy.

"You young fool!" he swore. "I'll kill you!"

Roy was helpless before him. Dan'l held him by the throat, his fingers sinking home. Roy beat and tore at the man for a space; then his face blackened and his eyes bulged, and Dan'l flung him away.

Brander might have helped him but for the fact that three men dropped on him from the companion-hatch and bore him, smothering, to the deck. The three were Silva and his allies. Silva had a knife, and Mauger had felt it on the deck above. The one-eyed man lay there now, twisting and clutching at a gash in his side.

Silva was first down on Brander; and he struck at Brander's neck as he leaped. But Brander had time to dodge to one side, so that Silva hit him on the hip and bore him down. Then the other two were upon them.

This sudden tumult in the cabin rang through the Sally. The night was still; the noise could be heard even by the boats that drifted half a mile away. Its abrupt outbreak was unsettling; it jangled taut nerves. Long Jim, Loum, Eph Hitch, and the two remaining seamen lost courage, raced for a boat, dropped it to the water and pulled off to see what was to come. Tichel, who was on deck, ran to try to stop them; but Loum struck out at him blindly, and threw the old mate off his balance for an instant that was long enough to let them get away.

The desertion of these last men left on the Sally only the four officers, Roy, Mauger, Silva and Silva's two men. Faith was still helpless, so was Roy. Mauger had dragged himself upright against the bulwarks and stripped up his shirt to investigate his wound. It was bleeding profusely, but he found that he could breathe without difficulty, and told himself shrewdly that he would come out all right.

Of men able to fight aboard the Sally, there were left Dan'l, Silva, and the two seamen on one side, against Brander, Tichel and Cox. The attitude of Tichel and Cox was in some sort uncertain; but the problem was quickly settled.

Dan'l, dropping Faith and flinging Roy aside, had charged into the main cabin to finish Brander; but Brander was so inextricably involved in his struggle with his three antagonists that Dan'l got no immediate chance at him. He was shifting around the twisting tangle of men, watching, when Willis came out of his cabin in a single leap.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The News Is Spread.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

You'll always find that common fright
Ends anger and desire to fight.
—Old Mother Nature.

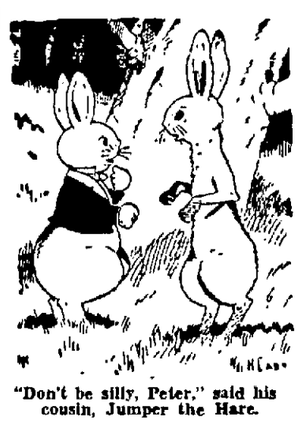

News travels fast through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows. It wasn't long before all the little people of the Smiling Pool, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture, as well as the Green Forest and the Green Medows, knew that Lightfoot the Deer was in dreadful trouble. First, the news of the great fight between Lightfoot and another Deer had spread. Then, when Sammy Jay discovered that the two fighters could not separate, but were locked together head to head by their antlers, the news traveled even faster. Every one who could do so went over there to see it. Even Johnny Chuck started, then decided that it was too far for his short legs.

But, of course, Peter Rabbit was there. Somehow, Peter had missed the fight; but he didn't mind this so much as long as he didn't miss this stranger sight of the two Deer locked together. Lightfoot and the other Deer paid no attention to the little people looking on. They had no thought for anything but their own misery. Much of the time they spent down on their knees, for they had used up their strength in fighting and in struggling. It was a pitiful sight and there was pity in the eyes of all the onlookers. There seemed to be nothing that any one could do. Even great, big Buster Bear was helpless in the matter. Strange to say he was a little bit afraid. This was also true of Yowler the Bobcat. There was something mysterious about this trouble, and mystery usually awakens fear.

"It's dreadful!" said Peter Rabbit. "It's the most dreadful thing I've ever heard of! They'll both die! They'll both starve to death! They cannot eat and they cannot drink. Can't somebody do something?"

"Don't be silly, Peter!" said his cousin, Jumper the Hare. "Of course, nobody can do anything. I guess it is one of those things that has to be. Im sorry for Mrs. Lightfoot, too. See how sorrowful she looks. We certainly will miss Lightfoot. Without him the Green Forest will not be the same."

"Just the same, something ought

"Don't be silly, Peter," said his cousin, Jumper the Hare.

to bedone about it," said Peter, and sat down to scratch a long ear with a long hind foot. When that failed to bring him an idea he scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot. "Something's got to be done about it," he repeated. Then he brightened suddenly and hopped to his feet. "I've thought of something," said he.

"What!" demanded Jumper.

"I've thought of some one who can help," replied Peter. "I just know he can help."

Jumper looked at him doubtfully. "Who do you know who can possibly be of any help at a time like this?" he demanded.

"Farmer Brown's Boy," replied Peter. "If he were here I know he could do something. Yes, sir, I know he could do something."

"Well, he isn't here," said Jumper.

"We've got to get him here," replied Peter. "Yes, sir, we've go to get him over here. If he once comes over here he'll do something; I know he will. I don't know why I didn't think of Farmer Brown's Boy before. Now, let's sit down and think and think until we can find some way to get Farmer Brown's Boy over here."

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

KING'S RULES OF LIFE ARE COMMENDED.

I commend to your attention the rules of life which King George of England is said to have framed for himself.

Dr. Clendening

I quote the first four:

"Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

"Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentamentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

"Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

"If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast, that goes away to suffer in silence."

When these were made public a few weeks ago, the New Haven Journal-Courier commented on them rather disparagingly.

"Why should one be obedient to the rules of the game if the game is wrong?" it asked about the first one. But that first one seems infinitely pathetic to me, considering the ghastly role His Majesty was called upon to play in life. Lots of us think the game is wrong, but how would you like to see Babe Ruth take a tennis racquet to the plate and whiff at the balls crying, "The game's all wrong, let's play it with racquets."

In my professional capacity, it is the king's fourth rule which appeals to me most. Commenting on this the New Haven Journal-Courier says:

"Why should one suffer in silence if there is any balm in making a noise about it? (And there must be such balm, because most people we know do make a noise about suffering)."

The "speaking of operations" theme. But I wonder if people know how much they bore other people talking of their illnesses. The king has the right dope—hardly anybody is interested in your troubles but yourself.

And why people will pick on the members of the poor, long suffering medical profession to tell their stories of gore and pain unto is the deepest mystery of all. Some woman who has had one operation finds that her neighbor on the train is a doctor and immediately treats him to a long dissertation on what her doctor said, and how if the thing had gone on a day longer it would have been too late, and what a wonderful personality her doctor had, and—its no wonder her unhappy auditor takes refuge in the smoking room.

TWO APPEALS FILED IN SUPREME COURT

A divorce action and a suit for money claimed owed on notes were appealed to the Supreme court Saturday.

Julia D. Mohr is appealing from a Madison county District court order in which she got a divorce from Jacob Mohr, custody of their children, and $1,250 alimony. She had asked more alimony.

Doris J. Kienke is appealing from a District court order in Keya Paha county in which he recovered $8,348.43 from George J. Kirsch. The other defendant in the action over notes, William N. Hudson, was dismissed from the action in the trial court. Kienke had asked a larger verdict.

OUT IN THE OPEN.

The real objectives of the Boulder dam project have been brought out in the open at last. During the long fight waged in congress over authorizing an appropriation of $165,000,000 of tax funds to cover the expenses of the undertaking, the country heard much about the flood perils in the lower Colorado river valley. It was said that loss of life, and the appalling destruction of property of thousands of farm homes might be the penalty for failure to take the Colorado under control.

But in the announcement of civil service examinations to fill positions created by actual construction of the Boulder Dam project, this statement appears in the bulletin from Washington: "This huge task has three purposes, namely, reclamation of arid lands, power development and flood control." It would appear that the safety and protection of people, who settled in the lower Colorado river valley, is of far less importance than making a desert bloom or supplying cheap power to the city of Los Angeles and other California cities.

It is not the Boulder Dam project but the methods employed to ram it through congress, and the precedent which it establishes, which are seriously open to question. There is something inspiring in the courage of a people to overcome the natural obstacles placed in their path. Every reclamation project is a declaration of war against perverse and obstinate nature. To reclaim the sun scorched, parched desert, and to make it bloom and produce is a goal which may justly claim the enthusiasm and support of the entire nation.

Even the fact we are at this time suffering from an over production of grain and most everything else which comes from the farm might be overlooked. There will be a day when the American people will be glad they have Boulder Dam. They will have need of the produce which comes from the rich farms along the lower Colorado. Years ago, however, the federal government definitely adopted a reclamation plan. Under its provisions thousands of acres of sandy soil in the western and northwestern part of Nebraska have been made to produce. In every instance, heretofore, the benefited lands have been compelled to hear a part of the cost of the improvement.

What irritates in connection with Boulder Dam is the fact that while North Platte valley citizens in Nebraska have been hard pressed during the last ten years to pay their assessments for irrigation, those interested in the Boulder Dam project will tap the federal treasury for the full amount of the development. If the Boulder Dam farmer is to have the water brought to his land without cost, paying only yearly maintenance charges, then in all fairness the Department of Interior should adopt a similar policy with respect to the irrigation projects in western Nebraska. There is no equity in the government doing for a favored section what it has consistently refused to do in earlier reclamation development.

Boulder Dam, it has been estimated, will cost $165,000,000. With the sole exception of the Panama canal it represents the greatest engineering project ever undertaken by the federal government. The chances are that it will cost much more than $165,000,000 before it is completed. That has been the experience in private as well as public undertakings. Ordinarily the costs run far in excess of the original computations. In the case of land owners in the North Platte district, assessments were more than double what the people had been led to believe they would be.

But Boulder Dam will not entail too great a price in the event its full possibilities are realized as undoubtedly they will be. The soil in the valley of the Lower Colorado is wonderfully fertile, and in a semi-tropical climate capable of producing immense quantities of foodstuffs. If a portion of the cost of it is paid by benefited land owners then the final real objection to it will be removed.

AN AVOIDABLE DANGER TO CHILDREN.

Several years ago, after a series of fatal automobile accidents had occurred on the streets of Lincoln with children as the victims, the board of education and the city commission took joint action to safeguard boys and girls on their way to and from school against a recurrence of these sad incidents. Present regulations, which provide for placing temporary stop signs at intersections near buildings when the young folks are arriving at or leaving school, have brought very good results. Watchfulness of teachers over the younger pupils has also helped a great deal.

There still remains, however, a condition not within the control of school authorities which ought to be corrected before additional juvenile deaths take place. This is the habit of children playing in the street near their homes outside of school hours. Regardless of what may be said about the right of boys and girls to have their fun—a right which nobody will dispute—there is no good reason for permitting them to expose themselves to the risk of being killed or maimed by indulging in pastimes in the path of moving vehicles.

Where parents fail to look after their offspring, it is not surprising to see comparatively small children playing tag and other games on the pavement. Of course, when so engaged, they lose all sense of danger and are just as likely as not to run in front of an approaching car, or perhaps to crash into it from the side. Since drivers are not all so careful as they might be, and some brakes are not in such condition as to respond immediately to pressure on a foot pedal, the hazard involved in street sports is quite apparent.

Even boys in their teens who get out in the streets and throw or kick footballs around are not immune from the tendency to disregard their precarious situation. An ambitious youth intent on catching a forward pass or a punt is apt to get himself into a dangerous situation. That no serious casualty of this kind has taken place recently is due more to good fortune than anything else. But some day it is bound to happen; and when it does there will be another public outcry against the authorities who allow the streets to be used as playgrounds.

The authorities must accept their share of blame for anything of this kind which may occur. However, they are not the only ones at fault. Fathers and mothers who allow their children to indulge in street games have the primary responsibility in the matter. Far better would it be to keep the youngsters inside their own yards, even at the sacrifice of healthful exercise, than to let them go where they may be struck down and left dead or crippled for life.

But it is not necessary to deprive the boys and girls of their play in order to preserve them from danger. Lincoln is not such a congested city that places for sport and recreation are lacking. There are many spacious backyards and vacant lots, and every schoolhouse yard is available as a public playground after school hours. There are also the municipal parks, the American Legion square, and other spots available for open air activities of children.

Now is the time, before any fatal accident has taken place, to put a curb on the dangerous practice of playing in the streets. Police and parents should cooperate in stopping it before some unfortunate child is run down.

CONSTRUCTIVE ECONOMICS.

There are those who think that nothing can be done to alter the conditions of supply and demand which bring about peculiar economic conditions—that man must forever remain the slave of pendulum-like reactions in the business world. The business depression which followed the phenomenal prosperity period from 1923 to 1929 has seemed to the more pessimistically inclined a convincing evidence of their theory.

A study of some of the recent data compiled by the department of commerce and outlined in a talk by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the department, furnishes an unexpected revelation of what constructive economics can do to relieve an unpleasant situation.

That it has been relieved is evident to all observers of general business conditions, despite the fact that the country has not made a complete adjustment from the collapse, largely psychological which many felt occurred.

Dr. Klein presents an interesting review of what has been done in the way of construction to aid the 1930 situation. It is generally believed that all businesses suffered a great falling off in 1930. The commerce official, however, points out that over four hundred million dollars more was spent during the first six months of 1930 for public works and utilities construction than in the same period of 1929.

"That extra four hundred million dollars translated into bricks and lumber and mortar and jobs all over the country most certainly did ease the whole business situation," declares Dr. Klein.

The figures are interesting. This country, in the first half of the present year, spent more than $360,000,000 in highway construction. It expended nearly two hundred millions for school buildings. Pipelines constructed during the period cost $105,000,000. Railway construction including railway bridges cost $130,000,000 and other bridges cost $85,000,000. Public building saw the expenditure of $62,000,000. Sewerage systems cost $50,000,000 and water-front developments $42,000,000.

These activities represented a substantial contribution to that wage return which is the only fundamental insurance of good business—a reasonable distribution of the capacity to buy. It could not be expected that everything would recover at once. Drain a man's financial resources and he must have time to recover even after he has a job before he can be the potential buyer he once was. But these activities did represent a substantial contribution of directive effort to relieve unemployment.

Indirectly they helped Nebraska by improving the general business tone of the nation as a whole. Add to this general elevation of attitude and of situation throughout the country, the splendid agricultural year which Nebraska has experienced and its manifold opportunities to realize on its production this year, and the reasons for abundant optimism as to the prospects for Nebraska for the coming year are evident.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1930, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

When my son was 16 he spent too much time with a certain girl and I phoned her parents, asking them to discourage his visits, but my protests were unavailing. Her mother defied me. The expected happened and I have to confess I supplied the money for an illegal operation, being very furious with the girl's family for disregarding my wishes. Ought I to have my son marry her? Did I do wrong to pay? Shall I try again to sever the association between the two.

Kindly omit address.

ANSWER.

I do not know all the facts of your grave problem, but certainly you did wrong and laid yourself open to a severe legal penalty by aiding and abetting an illegal operation. Of course, the alternative was marriage, to which the youth of the parties may have seemed an insuperable barrier. Moreover, the chances do not favor happy wedlock when courtship is as immature and degrading as it was in this case.

Yet you confess that the unfortunate pair still hold together. And if their sad experience has more closely welded them on the spiritual side of marriage I feel inclined to advise it for them. Much is due the girl who has scarcely known the advantages of youth and has also born the brunt of this calamity, due to parental folly, and to that glaring pretense dubbed "the new freedom." Nobody can have real freedom once they step beyond its boundaries. What such trespassers do get, her harsh experience can testify.

Be generous to her. Crucify your prejudices. Remember that she has suffered. If she is willing to marry your son he ought to be eager to marry her. The two mothers do not shine in this business. But both of you may partly redeem the fearful mistakes of the past by uniting your efforts to settle the young couple in life.

QUESTION.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

Have you ever had any psychic experience? If so, what was the effect on you? Do you believe we can prove the existence of a spiritual world by those experiences?

ANSWER.

I have not had any such experiences, therefore I have no personal testimony to offer upon the matter.

Evidence in favor of psychic manifestations should not be summarily dismissed by those who are ignorant of them. Sir Oliver Lodge is a distinguished scientist. Sir Conan Doyle was an equally distinguished observer of human life. The late Professor Crookes, also an eminent scientist, was a close and logical thinker. All three emphatically accept the reality of communication with the discarnate. The list of prominent individuals in various walks of life who concur in their views could be multiplied indefinitely.

Lodge asserts that by employing proper means you can find that the person you knew is still in existence, that he remembers what has happened here, that his personality survives the shock of bodily death, with the resulting inference that man's memory and personality do not depend on his physical organism.

They are not lodged in the brain, which is the material instrumentality for recording nerve reactions. This instrument may be damaged, but the mind which operates it is not necessarily destroyed as a consequence. Professor William James also argued that personality was independent of all its earthly means of manifestation.

The entire question is one of evidence. So far the proof reported does not appear to me to establish beyond all reasonable doubt the actuality of this kind of communication, but one should keep an open mind on the issue.

QUESTION.

Buffalo, N. Y.

What did the Lausanne conference intend to do and what has it actually accomplished?

ANSWER.

It met, thanks to Bishop Brent of blessed memory, for the purpose of considering matters of faith and order, but emphatically refused to define and discuss conditions of future reunion of the churches. It sought to determine those fundamental agreements and disagreements existing between the churches represented at the conference, as representative of all Christendom with the exception of the Roman Catholic church, which was not officially present thereat.

Its reports upon The Call to Unity, The Message of the Church to the World, The Nature of the Church, The Church's Common Confession of Faith, The Ministry of the Church, The Sacraments, and The Unity of Christendom and the Relation thereto of Existing Churches, are printed and may be obtained from the officials of the conference.

Its continuation has been effected by the formation of a committee which meets annually. The session for 1929 was held at Maloja, Switzerland, and now awaits a further report on the issues named above, which will be submitted to the gathering in the early autumn of this year of 1930. It would seem to be the wisest course for all who share Bishop Brent's spirit and aim in this great undertaking to postpone definite acts pertaining to the further unity of Christendom until that report appears.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The News Is Spread.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

You'll always find that common fright
Ends anger and desire to fight.
—Old Mother Nature.

News travels fast through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows. It wasn't long before all the little people of the Smiling Pool, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture, as well as the Green Forest and the Green Medows, knew that Lightfoot the Deer was in dreadful trouble. First, the news of the great fight between Lightfoot and another Deer had spread. Then, when Sammy Jay discovered that the two fighters could not separate, but were locked together head to head by their antlers, the news traveled even faster. Every one who could do so went over there to see it. Even Johnny Chuck started, then decided that it was too far for his short legs.

But, of course, Peter Rabbit was there. Somehow, Peter had missed the fight; but he didn't mind this so much as long as he didn't miss this stranger sight of the two Deer locked together. Lightfoot and the other Deer paid no attention to the little people looking on. They had no thought for anything but their own misery. Much of the time they spent down on their knees, for they had used up their strength in fighting and in struggling. It was a pitiful sight and there was pity in the eyes of all the onlookers. There seemed to be nothing that any one could do. Even great, big Buster Bear was helpless in the matter. Strange to say he was a little bit afraid. This was also true of Yowler the Bobcat. There was something mysterious about this trouble, and mystery usually awakens fear.

"It's dreadful!" said Peter Rabbit. "It's the most dreadful thing I've ever heard of! They'll both die! They'll both starve to death! They cannot eat and they cannot drink. Can't somebody do something?"

"Don't be silly, Peter!" said his cousin, Jumper the Hare. "Of course, nobody can do anything. I guess it is one of those things that has to be. Im sorry for Mrs. Lightfoot, too. See how sorrowful she looks. We certainly will miss Lightfoot. Without him the Green Forest will not be the same."

"Just the same, something ought

"Don't be silly, Peter," said his cousin, Jumper the Hare.

to bedone about it," said Peter, and sat down to scratch a long ear with a long hind foot. When that failed to bring him an idea he scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot. "Something's got to be done about it," he repeated. Then he brightened suddenly and hopped to his feet. "I've thought of something," said he.

"What!" demanded Jumper.

"I've thought of some one who can help," replied Peter. "I just know he can help."

Jumper looked at him doubtfully. "Who do you know who can possibly be of any help at a time like this?" he demanded.

"Farmer Brown's Boy," replied Peter. "If he were here I know he could do something. Yes, sir, I know he could do something."

"Well, he isn't here," said Jumper.

"We've got to get him here," replied Peter. "Yes, sir, we've go to get him over here. If he once comes over here he'll do something; I know he will. I don't know why I didn't think of Farmer Brown's Boy before. Now, let's sit down and think and think until we can find some way to get Farmer Brown's Boy over here."

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

KING'S RULES OF LIFE ARE COMMENDED.

I commend to your attention the rules of life which King George of England is said to have framed for himself.

Dr. Clendening

I quote the first four:

"Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

"Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentamentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

"Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

"If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast, that goes away to suffer in silence."

When these were made public a few weeks ago, the New Haven Journal-Courier commented on them rather disparagingly.

"Why should one be obedient to the rules of the game if the game is wrong?" it asked about the first one. But that first one seems infinitely pathetic to me, considering the ghastly role His Majesty was called upon to play in life. Lots of us think the game is wrong, but how would you like to see Babe Ruth take a tennis racquet to the plate and whiff at the balls crying, "The game's all wrong, let's play it with racquets."

In my professional capacity, it is the king's fourth rule which appeals to me most. Commenting on this the New Haven Journal-Courier says:

"Why should one suffer in silence if there is any balm in making a noise about it? (And there must be such balm, because most people we know do make a noise about suffering)."

The "speaking of operations" theme. But I wonder if people know how much they bore other people talking of their illnesses. The king has the right dope—hardly anybody is interested in your troubles but yourself.

And why people will pick on the members of the poor, long suffering medical profession to tell their stories of gore and pain unto is the deepest mystery of all. Some woman who has had one operation finds that her neighbor on the train is a doctor and immediately treats him to a long dissertation on what her doctor said, and how if the thing had gone on a day longer it would have been too late, and what a wonderful personality her doctor had, and—its no wonder her unhappy auditor takes refuge in the smoking room.

"THE SEA BRIDE"

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE.

Chapter XLVI.

"Brander?" Faith cried in a passion. "Brander? The thief that's lying now in the irons I put upon him? Him? Him you say I love?

The very force of her anger should have told Dan'l the truth; but he was so blind that it served only to rejoice him.

"I knew it!" he cried. "I knew it! So you love me, Faith."

"Must a woman always be loving?" she demanded wearily.

"Aye, Faith. It's the nature of them always to be loving—some one. With you, Faith. It's me. Listen and see!"

"Dan'l," she said steadily, "what's the end of all this? What's the end of it all? What would you have me do?

"Love me," he told her.

"What else?"

"See the truth," he said. "Understand that the Sally is lost—fast aground here to rot her bones away. See that it's hopeless and wild to stick to her. We'll get out the boats. You and I and Roy and a man or two will take one; the others may have the other craft. It's not fifty miles to—"

"Leave the Sally?" she demanded.

"Yes."

"I'll not talk with you, Dan'l. I'll never do that!"

"There's the ambergris," he reminded her. "We'll take that. It will recompense old Jonathan for his Sally and her oil.'

"No!"

Her word was so sharp that it checked him. He was up on his feet, bending above her, pouring out his pleadings; but she threw him into silence with that last word. The red flush of passion in his face blackened to something with the heat in him. He bent a little nearer, while her eyes met his steadily; and his hands dropped and gripped her arms above the elbows. She came to her feet, facing him.

"Dan'l!" she said warningly.

"If you'll not go because you will, you'll go because you must," he told her huskily and harshly. "You'll whine at my feet afore I'm through with you. You'll beg me to marry you in the end!"

If she had been able to hold still, to hold his eyes with hers, she might have mastered him even then; for in any match of courage against courage, she was the stronger. But the horror of him overwhelmed her; she tried to wrench away. Her struggle fired him. In a battle of strength and strength she had no chance. He swung her against his chest, and she flung her head back that her lips might escape him. He laughed. His lips were dry and twitching as she fought to be away from him. He held her for an instant, held her striving body against his own to revel in its struggles.

He had her thus in his arms, forcing her back, crushing her, when the door flung open and Roy Kilcup stood here. The boy cried in desperate warning:

"Dan'l, Brander is—"

Then he comprehended that which he saw. He screamed with the fury of an animal, and flung himself at Dan'l, tearing at the man with his strength of a boy.

Dan'l had laid his plans well; he had felt sure of success; but he had not counted on trouble with Faith. He thought, after their failure to float the Sally, she would be crushed and ready to fall into his arms, ready at least to yield to his advice and come away and leave the ship where it lay.

After that Dan'l counted on separating the crew by losing the other boats. The ambergris would be in his; he would master the men with him. Faith and the treasure would be his.

Brander was to stay in the Sally, ironed in the after 'tween-decks. Dan'l thought Brander was destroyed by the evidence of his thieving; he no longer feared the man.

Not all the crew would go with him when he left the ship Old Tichel had refused.

"I've waited all my days to be cap'n of a craft," Tichel declared. "With you gone, I'm master of the Sally. I'll stay and get the feeling of it."

And Dan'l was willing to let him stay. Willis Cox agreed to do as Faith decided. Long Jim, the harpooner, was loyal to Tichel. Loum, Dan'l did not trust. The man might stay with Brander if he chose.

But Dan'l had on his side Kellick, the steward; and Yella Boy, and Silva, and four seamen from forward, and seven of those who had shipped as green hands. Silva hated Brander no less than Dan'l, for Brander had taken the mate's berth that Silva had hoped to get. Silva was Dan'l's right-hand man in his plans. And Roy, Dan'l thought, was his own to do with as he chose.

Mauger got some whisperings of all this, of course, in the fo'c'sle. There was no effort to keep it secret from him; no effort to keep the matter secret at all. Dan'l had said openly that if the Sally did not float he was for deserting her; those might come with him who chose. Save Mauger, there were none openly against him. Tichel would stay, Willis waited on Faith's word, but the rest held off and swung neither one way nor another.

All of which Mauger, with infinite stealth, told Brander, sneaking down into the after 'tween-decks at peril of his skin, night after night. Brander, fast-ironed there, and taking his calamities very philosophically, praised the little man.

"Keep your eyes open," he said. "Bring me any word you get. Warn me in full time. And—find me a good, keen file."

Mauger fetched the file, pilfering it from the tool chest of Eph Hitch, the cooper. Brander worked patiently at his bonds, submitting without protest to his captivity.

That night of the full moon, after they had failed to float the Sally, Dan'l called Silva and bade him prepare the boats.

"Get food and water into them," he said. "Take plenty. Make them ready. Tell the rest of the men to lower if they've a mind. I'm for leaving."

Silva grinned his understanding. He asked a question.

"I'm going down now to convince her," Dan'l said. "She'll come, no fear."

He went below and left Silva to prepare the boats. Old Tichel was on deck, but Willis had gone below. Tichel did not molest Silva. Discipline had evaporated on the Sally; it was every man for himself. Those who were for leaving ship were hotly impatient; and one boatful of men lowered and drew slowly away toward the mouth of the cove where the Sally lay.

There was no wind; the sea was glassy; and their oars stirred the water into sparkling showers like jewels. Kellick, Yella Boy, and four seamen were in that boat. Five of the green hands and Tinch, the cook, caught the infection, dumped food and water into another craft, and followed.

Silva got his boat overside. He had with him two men—men of his choosing, who had signed as green hands, but were stalwarts now. He made sure the boat was ready, then stood in her, holding with one hand to the rail, and waiting for Dan'l to come with Faith. Roy, who would also go in this boat, was on the after deck.

The men in the two craft that had already left the ship were lying on their oars half a mile away, watching the Sally. In all their minds was the thought of the ambergris. They had no notion of leaving that behind; and they did not mean to be tricked out of their share in it. Silva could see the boats idly drifting.

Mauger slipped down to Brander and told him what was afoot.

"Two boats gone a'ready," he said. "Silva waiting for Mr. Tobey now."

"Where's she?" Brander asked.

"In the cabin. Mr. Tobey went to her. He've not come up yet."

Brander considered.

"Fetch a handspike," he said. "It's time I took a hand."

When Mauger had crawled on deck and returned with what Brander wanted, he pried open the filed irons, stood up, and shook himself to ease the ache of his muscles.

"Now," he said, "let's go see!"

He reached the deck, Mauger at his heels, and started aft. Silva, head above the rail, marked Brander's movements, and signed his two men to follow, and swung up aboard the Sally. Roy saw Brander and leaped down to the cabin to warn Dan'l. Brander followed him. Mauger, at Brander's back, heard Silva's rushing feet and turned to meet his charge.

Brander was at the foot of the companion-ladder when Roy threw open the after cabin door; he saw, as Roy saw, Dan'l gripping Faith so brutally. He heard Roy's cry; then Roy leaped to grapple Dan'l.

Roy's eyes were opened in that moment; he had become a man. Dan'l had told him they would leave the ship, had told him nothing more. The boy had been full of anger against his sister, and Dan'l counted on this, and feared no trouble from him. He forgot that the anger of a boy is not overstrong. It was swept away now in a lightning flash of understanding. When Roy saw Faith in Dan'l's arms, helplessly fighting against his kisses, he leaped to protect her as if there had never been harsh words between them.

The boy gripped Dan'l from behind. For an instant more Dan'l clung to Faith. His encircling arm tightened about her, so that she thought her ribs would crack. When he flung her away she was breathless and sick with nausea, and she fell on the floor and lay there gasping for breath. Dan'l flung her away and swung on Roy.

"You young fool!" he swore. "I'll kill you!"

Roy was helpless before him. Dan'l held him by the throat, his fingers sinking home. Roy beat and tore at the man for a space; then his face blackened and his eyes bulged, and Dan'l flung him away.

Brander might have helped him but for the fact that three men dropped on him from the companion-hatch and bore him, smothering, to the deck. The three were Silva and his allies. Silva had a knife, and Mauger had felt it on the deck above. The one-eyed man lay there now, twisting and clutching at a gash in his side.

Silva was first down on Brander; and he struck at Brander's neck as he leaped. But Brander had time to dodge to one side, so that Silva hit him on the hip and bore him down. Then the other two were upon them.

This sudden tumult in the cabin rang through the Sally. The night was still; the noise could be heard even by the boats that drifted half a mile away. Its abrupt outbreak was unsettling; it jangled taut nerves. Long Jim, Loum, Eph Hitch, and the two remaining seamen lost courage, raced for a boat, dropped it to the water, and pulled off to see what was to come. Tichel, who was on deck, ran to try to stop them; but Loum struck out at him blindly, and threw the old mate off his balance for an instant that was long enough to let them get away.

The desertion of these last men left on the Sally only the four officers, Roy, Mauger, Silva and Silva's two men. Faith was still helpless, so was Roy. Mauger had dragged himself upright against the bulwarks and stripped up his shirt to investigate his wound. It was bleeding profusely, but he found that he could breathe without difficulty, and told himself shrewdly that he would come out all right.

Of men able to fight aboard the Sally, there were left Dan'l, Silva, and the two seamen on one side, against Brander, Tichel and Cox. The attitude of Tichel and Cox was in some sort uncertain; but the problem was quickly settled.

Dan'l, dropping Faith and flinging Roy aside, had charged into the main cabin to finish Brander; but Brander was so inextricably involved in his struggle with his three antagonists that Dan'l got no immediate chance at him. He was shifting around the twisting tangle of men, watching, when Willis came out of his cabin in a single leap.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

POOR EPITAPH.

He had money, but he lacked
Manhood, courtesy and tact.

This is all than can be told:
He had silver, he had gold.

Needing wages which he paid,
Servants of him were afraid.

Merchants, thinking loss it meant,
Feared his insults to resent.

Being rich, he couldn't see
There was something else to be.

Who of wealth advantage takes,
But a sorry picture makes.

Bare, indeed, the gravestone which
Says no more than: "He was rich!"

Nervous, Tired, Felt Miserable

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. Please publish this letter because the Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."—*Mrs. Lloyd R. Nervous, Tired, Felt Miserable

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. Please publish this letter because the Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."—Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing, 115 So. Ohio St., Anaheim, California.

Stocks Unable to Hold Gains, as Well Known Shares Lose From One to Five Points

Sharp Setback In Grain Prices

Corn Suffers Heaviest Decline in Heavy Selling Movement.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 11

A heavy selling movement was on in grains today, resulting in a sharp setback in prices, especially for corn. The latter commodity closed 2⅝ to 3¼c lower. Wheat was down 1⅞ to 2⅜c, oats 1⅛ to 1¼c and rye 1¾ to 2¼c.

Weakness in the stock market figured in much of the late selling.

Friday's advance in wheat weakened the technical position of the market and sharp losses were recorded early. Weakness in corn and unresponsive cables tended to check support in the market. Offerings were liberal.

Liverpool closed ¼d. lower to ⅛d. higher, being affected by bearish Australian crop reports. One report fixed the crop at 190,000,000 bushels against 120,000,000 bushels last year. The local board of trade will be closed Monday, owing to celebration of Columbus day, but foreign markets, including Winnipeg will be open.

The government report on corn was regarded as somewhat bearish and prices broke around 2½c early on heavy selling. Support was fair on the decline. Weather conditions over the belt were generally favorable.

Oats and rye sold off with other grains. Estimated carlot receipts were: Wheat, 11 cars; corn, 16 7cars, and oats, 34 cars.

Downard Trend On Stock Market

General Motors Drops to New Low Level For the Year.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11

Heavy selling of the amusement stocks broke out near the close. Loews sustained a net loss of nearly 5 points, at 53⅝. Fox closed about 2 points lower, at 35⅜; Radio-Keith down ½ at 21½; Paramount down 1¼ at 48½.

United States Steel finished the short session a point lower, at 148½. Bethlehem Steel lost 2½ points at 73½; American Can 1⅜ at 116⅞; General Electric 3⅝ at 54¾c; Westinghouse about 5 points at 111⅞.

General Motors closed at 35¼, down 2⅛; Sears Roebuck down 2⅜ at 55; New York Central down 5 at 140; Baltimore & Ohio down 2 at 86; American & Foreign Power down 3⅜ at 39⅜; Consolidated Gas down 3¾ at 95¾; Columbia Gas down 2⅞ at 44¼; Vanadium down 2⅝ at 49⅞; Houston Oil down 2⅝ at 54.

Transactions on the big board today were totaled 1,725,000 shares, about double last Saturday's volume.

Industrial stocks and utilities today were unable to hold the position acquired after the opening, when moderate rallies took place in a number of the speculative leaders, the trend of the market was downward, with losses ranging from 1 to 5 points in a long list of the well known shares.

Failure of U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse and other blue-chips to hold any large portion of Friday's gains was discouraging to the bulls, many of whom were deterred by Monday's holiday from entering the market in support of their favorites. U. S. Steel dropped off from 15 1to 147⅞ as selling pressure developed, an dthe prominent amusement stocks, Loews and Fox were again under pressure. General Motors dipped to a new low for the year at 35¼ and fairly heavy losses were sustained by the dividend rails. Chesapeake & Ohio losing 3 points and New York Central 4.

While further rallies took place today in many of the favorite industrial and utility stocks which bore the brunt of the selling this week, the market in the short weekend session was irregular, with prices swinging in a narrow range in both directions.

United States Steel spurted to 151 in the first period, in an effort to lead the way to higher prices, but heavy week-end selling, with profit-taking thrown in, blocked the rally in the market as a whole. Renewal of selling pressure against Fox Film, Loews, Bethlehem Steel, Vanadium, Westinghouse and other speculative favorites in the second hour turned the general tide of prices downward, and losses from the early peaks ranged all the way from 1 to 4½ points.

Quieting down of speculative trading as the session advanced suggested the drying up of the forced liquidation that has been carrying the market steadily downward. Buying demand, either from investors or speculators, was not very brisk. The week-end trade reviews were more cheerful in what they promised than in their reports of actual accomplishments. Grain and cotton markets were slightly reactionary.

Loews was again under pressure and sold off 3½ points at 55. Du Pont repeated 5 points to 99. Bethlehem Steel dropped to a new low for the year at 73½, down 2½. Hahn Department Stores preferred lost 10 points.

The active railroad and utility stocks lost about half of the ground gained in Friday's late rally. Consolidated Gas sold in good volume at 97½, down 2 points. Westinghouse was down 3 at 113¼; General Electric down 2 at 56½; United Corporation down a point; Atchison Railroad down 2 at 201½ and New York Central down 4 points at 141.

Professional buying and selling was retarded by the forthcoming holiday on Monday. Further losses were recorded in the foreign government bonds and speculative American issues which have been on the toboggan in the last two weeks, and wheat prices near the noon hour showed a loss of 1½c a bushel, with corn down 2½c a bushel.

Irregularity, with fairly wide swings in both directions in prices of active stocks, marked the opening of the stock market today. U. S. Steel opened unchanged at 149½, rallied to 151 and dropped back to 149⅜ in the first period.

Bethlehem Steel opened 1¼ points lower, at 74½ and Air Reduction was down 2½ at 104. Standard Oil of New Jersey rallied a point to 58½; Atchison was up 1½ at 205; Sears Roebuck down 1⅜ at 56½; American Can down ½ at 118; American Steel Foundries up a point at 33; Gold Dust up ½ at 35½; Radio up ½ at 25 and Radio-Keith unchanged at 22.

Utilities were irregular, with Consolidated Gas down ½ at 99; American Water Works unchanged at 81; Columbia Gas up ⅛ at 47¼; American & Foreign Power down ⅜ at 43⅜; United Corp. up ¼ at 24⅜.

Auburn Auto moved up 1¼ to 88. Chrysler was unchanged at 18; Studebaker up ½ at 27; Atlantic Refining p ⅞ at 25⅞; Houstonl Oil down ⅜ at 56.

Fox Film sold fractionally lower, at 37⅛. International Tel. & Tel. was up ¼ at 27¼; Johns Manville down ¼ at 69¾; Montgomery Ward up 1⅛ at 24⅞; Westinghouse down ⅝ at 115⅝.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.
By International News Service.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11

Reactionary tendencies again dominated the course of movements on the curb market today, and most sections of the list dipped to moderately lower levels. The inability of stocks to extend their advances in the early dealings influenced renewed pressure in the last hour.

The utility group sold off rather sharply with Electric Bond & Share, slumping some 4 points. A weak tone was also evidenced in American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Associated Gas & Electric A, Brazilian Traction, Commonwealth Edison, Middle West Utilities, United Gas & United Light & Power. Tampa Electric was an outstanding strong spot, however, spurting to 60 for a gain of 7 points.

Cities Service sagged fractionally.

Oils were irregular, with Gulf and Standard of Indiana holding steady.

Investment trusts were in steady supply and closed lower.

Aluminum Company moved contrary to the trend in the miscellaneous group, gaining 8 points at 180. Other industrial favorites were sharply lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11

No bottom was found for the sagging hog market in the dull trading today. Another 15 to 25c loss was recorded at the outset for choice lightweights, the only class that was selling at all, and the early top was $9.60. A few loads of choice quality were held at $9.75. Packers had 7,500 of the run of 10,000 on direct billing and were not out for any more supplies. Shippers were poor buyers also and only a few loads of lights went to them. Packing sows sold at $8.25 to $8.50 for weights over 350 lbs. The late reduction in values was the sharpest of the season. It was only Wednesday of this week that the top was $10.60 for medium weights, and lights were at $10.50. In these last three days almost $1.00 has been knocked off as the runs continued to swell.

Unevenness characterized the cattle market this week. Yearling steers and heavy-weights and sausage bulls were strong and 25 to 50c higher, while she stock and vealers lost 25c in slowed markets. Active demand for feeders each day cleaned up the supply of 10,000 thin cattle from the west, and put quotations on a 25c higher basis.

Despite a downturn near the close fat lambs closed 50 to 75c higher than a week ago. Shipping demand was broad early in week but tapered off during the last two market sessions. At the close the bulk of native lambs were selling at $8.25 to $8.50. after reaching a top earlier of $9.35. Rangers were moving on a 25c higher basis than natives. Fat ewes were 25c higher for the week.

CLUB BOYS AT NATIONAL MEET

4-H Dairy Calf Members Will Compete at St. Louis.

Representatives of Nebraska's 4-H dairy calf club members left Lincoln Saturday to compete in the National Dairy show to be held in St Louis, Mo., next week.

This group is made up of dairy exhibitors, a dairy judging team, dairy demonstration team, and a poultry demonstration team. They hope to better the record made last year at the show when the judging team won first on judging Holsteins, and ranked second in judging all breeds, while the two demonstration teams each won fourth place in their respective classes.

Entries Shipped.

Teams from twenty-six states competed for honors in 1929. It is expected that the competition will be as keen this year.

The 4-H entries were shipped to St. Louis Thursday. The twenty-seven exhibits included two groups of Guernsey cattle, and one group each of Brown Swiss, Ayrshires, and Holsteins, selected from Lancaster, Douglas, Gage, Sarpy, Cass, Webster, Seward and Dodge counties Donald Egger of Lancaster county and Paul Rolfsmeier of Seward county, two club boys, have charge of the two cars of cattle. The other thirty-five boys and girls were to drive to St. Louis accompanied by L. I. Frisbie, state club leader; O. H. Liebers, manager of Nebraska Dairy Development society, and county extension agents, Paul F. Taggart, Webster county; D. D. Wainscott, Cass county, and C. F. Bayles, Clay county.

Judges to Compete.

In competition with other states will be the judging team from Webster county consisting of Russell Clatte, Orville Turner, and Edward Pavelka, with James Morey, local leader. Cass county represents the state with its dairy demonstration team of Glen Heneger and Ray Smith, with S. Ray Smith, leader. Catherine and John Roberts, with Billie Donahue of Clay county, will compete for honors with their poultry demonstration.

A considerable portion of the expense of the trip will be defrayed by winnings of prize stock. Additional funds have been subscribed locally in the counties represented as well as by the Nebraska Farmer, Beatrice Creamery Co., Lincoln chamber of commerce, Roberts Dairy Co. of Lincoln, Fairmont Creamery Co., former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Carl R. Gray, Ford Hovey, W. Dale Clark, and Nebraska Dairymen's association to send these 4-H members on the trip.

POLICE AUTOMOTIVE SHOP IS RESTORED

Equipment to Be Cared For in Own Department Again Anderson Announces.

Re-establishment of the police department repair shop for the servicing of all police automotive equipment was announced Saturday morning by Acting Chief Anderson. The move was begun Saturday, and the shops, to be located in the police garage at Tenth and Q streets, will be functioning Monday.

The police repair shop was discontinued by Peter Johnstone, and merged with the fire department shop in the main building on Haymarket square, all the police repair equipment being transferred to it.

The re-establishment of a police shop will result in a considerable saving, and better servicing of equipment, Acting Chief Anderson believes. "Jimmy" James, newly appointed officer who formerly served as police mechanic, will have charge of the police shop, serving as master mechanic, the acting chief stated. A full-time mechanic will be employed in addition, and will be sworn in as an officer to serve in emergencies.

The police department repair bill the last year amounted to nearly $3,500, according to Anderson. He expects this to be pared considerably under the new arrangement.

MUNGER REFUSES MOTION DISMISS SUIT ON PATENTS

The Fremont organization asks an accounting of the profits arising out of the alleged patent infringement. The amount involved is said to be about $14,000,000.

Stocks Unable to Hold Gains, as Well Known Shares Lose From One to Five Points

Sharp Setback In Grain Prices

Corn Suffers Heaviest Decline in Heavy Selling Movement.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 11

A heavy selling movement was on in grains today, resulting in a sharp setback in prices, especially for corn. The latter commodity closed 2⅝ to 3¼c lower. Wheat was down 1⅞ to 2⅜c, oats 1⅛ to 1¼c and rye 1¾ to 2¼c.

Weakness in the stock market figured in much of the late selling.

Friday's advance in wheat weakened the technical position of the market and sharp losses were recorded early. Weakness in corn and unresponsive cables tended to check support in the market. Offerings were liberal.

Liverpool closed ¼d. lower to ¼d. higher, being affected by bearish Australian crop reports. One report fixed the crop at 190,000,000 bushels against 120,000,000 bushels last year. The local board of trade will be closed Monday, owing to celebration of Columbus day, but foreign markets, including Winnipeg will be open.

The government report on corn was regarded as somewhat bearish and prices broke around 2½c early on heavy selling. Support was fair on the decline. Weather conditions over the belt were generally favorable.

Oats and rye sold off with other grains. Estimated carlot receipts were: Wheat, 11 cars; corn, 16 7cars, and oats, 34 cars.

Downard Trend On Stock Market

General Motors Drops to New Low Level For the Year.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11

Heavy selling of the amusement stocks broke out near the close. Loews sustained a net loss of nearly 5 points, at 53⅝. Fox closed about 2 points lower, at 35⅜; Radio-Keith down ½ at 21½; Paramount down 1¼ at 48½.

United States Steel finished the short session a point lower, at 148½. Bethlehem Steel lost 2½ points at 73½; American Can 1⅜ at 116⅞; General Electric 3⅝ at 54¾c; Westinghouse about 5 points at 111⅝.

General Motors closed at 35¼, down 2⅛; Sears Roebuck down 2⅞ at 55; New York Central down 5 at 140; Baltimore & Ohio down 2 at 86; American & Foreign Power down 3⅞ at 39⅝; Consolidated Gas down 3¾ at 95¾; Columbia Gas down 2⅞ at 44¼; Vanadium down 2⅝ at 49⅝; Houston Oil down 2⅝ at 54.

Transactions on the big board today were totaled 1,725,000 shares, about double last Saturday's volume.

Industrial stocks and utilities today were unable to hold the position acquired after the opening, when moderate rallies took place in a number of the speculative leaders, the trend of the market was downward, with losses ranging from 1 to 5 points in a long list of the well known shares.

Failure of U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse and other blue-chips to hold any large portion of Friday's gains was discouraging to the bulls, many of whom were deterred by Monday's holiday from entering the market in support of their favorites. U. S. Steel dropped off from 15 1to 147⅞ as selling pressure developed, an dthe prominent amusement stocks, Loews and Fox were again under pressure. General Motors dipped to a new low for the year at 35¼ and fairly heavy losses were sustained by the dividend rails, Chesapeake & Ohio losing 3 points and New York Central 4.

While further rallies took place today in many of the favorite industrial and utility stocks which bore the brunt of the selling this week, the market in the short weekend session was irregular, with prices swinging in a narrow range in both directions.

United States Steel spurted to 151 in the first period, in an effort to lead the way to higher prices, but heavy week-end selling, with profit-taking thrown in, blocked the rally in the market as a whole. Renewal of selling pressure against Fox Film, Loews, Bethlehem Steel, Vanadium, Westinghouse and other speculative favorites in the second hour turned the general tide of prices downward, and losses from the early peaks ranged all the way from 1 to 4½ points.

Quieting down of speculative trading as the session advanced suggested the drying up of the forced liquidation that has been carrying the market steadily downward. Buying demand, either from investors or speculators, was not very brisk. The week-end trade reviews were more cheerful in what they promised than in their reports of actual accomplishments. Grain and cotton markets were slightly reactionary.

Loews was again under pressure and sold off 3½ points at 55. Du Pont repeated 5 points to 99. Bethlehem Steel dropped to a new low for the year at 73½, down 2½. Hahn Department Stores preferred lost 10 points.

The active railroad and utility stocks lost about half of the ground gained in Friday's late rally. Consolidated Gas sold in good volume at 97½, down 2 points. Westinghouse was down 3 at 113¼; General Electric down 2 at 56½; United Corporation down a point; Atchison Railroad down 2 at 201½ and New York Central down 4 points at 141.

Professional buying and selling was retarded by the forthcoming holiday on Monday. Further losses were recorded in the foreign government bonds and speculative American issues which have been on the toboggan in the last two weeks, and wheat prices near the noon hour showed a loss of 1½c a bushel, with corn down 2½c a bushel.

Irregularity, with fairly wide swings in both directions in prices of active stocks, marked the opening of the stock market today. U. S. Steel opened unchanged at 149½, rallied to 151 and dropped back to 149⅜ in the first period.

Bethlehem Steel opened 1½ points lower, at 74½ and Air Reduction was down 2½ at 104. Standard Oil of New Jersey rallied a point to 58½; Atchison was up 1¼ at 205; Sears Roebuck down 1⅜ at 56½; American Can down ½ at 118; American Steel Foundries up a point at 33; Gold Dust up ½ at 35½; Radio up ½ at 25 and Radio-Keith unchanged at 22.

Utilities were irregular, with Consolidated Gas down ½ at 99; American Water Works unchanged at 81; Columbia Gas up ⅛ at 47¼; American & Foreign Power down ¼ at 43⅜; United Corp. up ¼ at 24⅜.

Auburn Auto moved up 1¼ to 88. Chrysler was unchanged at 18; Studebaker up ½ at 27; Atlantic Refining up ⅞ at 25⅞; Houstoni Oil down ⅝ at 56.

Fox Film sold fractionally lower, at 37⅛. International Tel. & Tel. was up ¼ at 27¼; Johns Manville down ¼ at 69¾; Montgomery Ward up 1⅛ at 24⅞; Westinghouse down ⅝ at 115⅝.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.
By International News Service.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11

Reactionary tendencies again dominated the course of movements on the curb market today, and most sections of the list dipped to moderately lower levels. The inability of stocks to extend their advances in the early dealings influenced renewed pressure in the last hour.

The utility group sold off rather sharply with Electric Bond & Share, slumping some 4 points. A weak tone was also evidenced in American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Associated Gas & Electric A, Brazilian Traction, Commonwealth Edison, Middle West Utilities, United Gas & United Light & Power. Tampa Electric was an outstanding strong spot, however, spurting to 60 for a gain of 7 points.

Cities Service sagged fractionally.

Oils were irregular, with Gulf and Standard of Indiana holding steady.

Investment trusts were in steady supply and closed lower.

Aluminum Company moved contrary to the trend in the miscellaneous group, gaining 8 points at 180. Other industrial favorites were sharply lower.

Trading on Hog Market Is Dull

Sales to Packers at Omaha 15 to 25 Lower Than Friday Prices.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture)
By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Oct 11

CATTLE—Though it has advanced spots this week, the market was not satisfactory on bulk of the cattle; yearlings and best light fed steers were active at prices as much as 25c higher; heavier fed offerings ruled slow, closing with Monday's upturn lost and in extreme a little lower; even than last week; fat cows scored gains of 25c to mostly 50c, but canners and fat heifers were no more than steady; opening prices on feeders were partly lost late; close was slow especially on plain and medium kind but values are from steady to 25c higher for the week; all classes were nominally unchanged today.

CLOSE: Cattle receipts, 250; compared with a week ago; fed steers and yearlings uneven, yearlings 25c higher; weighty steers and medium weights, weak; she stock mostly 25c higher; low cutters and bulls steady; vealers 50c higher; stockers and feeders strong to 25c higher; bulks for the week: Fed steers and yarlings $10.00@12.00; weighty steers, $11.50; medium weights, $12.00; yearlings $097 lbs., $13.10; fed heifers, $10.00@12.00; grass cows, $4.50@5.75; cutter grades, $3.25@4.25; medium and native bulls, $4.75@5.25; westerns, $4.00@4.50; practical top vealers, $12.50; stocker and feeder steers, $6.75@8.75; flesh 977 lb. feeders, $9.35; choice yearlings up to $9.65; stock calves up to $10.00.

HOGS—Shipping inquiry was good considering the size of the supplies and better quality butchers and light packing sows found an early outlet at fully steady prices; trade to local packers was real dull with bids and sales fully 15 to 25c lower than Friday; most sow sales, $7.75@8.50; bulk of butchers, $8.75@9.50; top, $9.65; prices for the week: Sows and light lights remained unchanged while bulk of the butchers are unevenly 10 to 35c below last Saturday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11

No bottom was found for the sagging hog market in the dull trading today. Another 15 to 25c loss was recorded at the outset for choice lightweights, the only class that was selling at all, and the early top was $9.60. A few loads of choice quality were held at $9.75. Packers had 7,500 of the run of 10,000 on direct billing and were not out for any more supplies. Shippers were poor buyers also and only a few loads of lights went to them. Packing sows sold at $8.25 to $8.50 for weights over 350 lbs. The late reduction in values was the sarpest of the season. It was only Wednesday of this week that the top was $10.60 for medium weights, and lights were at $10.50. In these last three days almost $1.00 has been knocked off as the runs continued to swell.

Unevenness characterized the cattle market this week. Yearling steers and heavyweights and sausage bulls were strong and 25 to 50c higher, while she stock and vealers lost 25c in slowed markets. Active demand for feeders each day cleaned up the supply of 10,000 thin cattle from the west, and put quotations on a 25c higher basis.

Despite a downturn near the close fat lambs closed 50 to 75c higher than a week ago. Shipping demand was broad early in week but tapered off during the last two market sessions. At the close the bulk of native lambs were selling at $8.25 to $8.50, after reaching a top earlier of $9.35. Rangers were moving on a 25c higher basis than natives. Fat ewes were 25c higher for the week.

CATTLE—Receipts, 500; compared week ago fed yearlings strong; weighty steers 25 to 50c higher; she stock generally 25c lower; bulls, 25 to 50c higher and vealers 25 to 50c lower; stockers and feeders 25c up on active market which absorbed range crop at $6.50@8.25; packing yearlings and heavy feeders selling at $8.50@8.75; best $8.90; best yearlings topped at $13.35, new high, supply strictly good and choice kinds unusually large; selling mostly at $12.00@13.00; best heavy steers $12.60; bulk well finished offerings $11.00@12.00; about 10,000 western grassers in run.

SHEEP—Receipts, 3,500; today's market nominal; for week 328 doubles from feeding stations: 16,000 direct; compared week ago fat lambs 50 to 75c higher; yearlings showing upturn; fat ewes and feeding lambs 25c higher; instances more; market closed on down trend under liberal receipts, native lambs reached $9.25; practical top $9.00 paid rather freely for both native and range lambs; closing bulk good and choice native ewe and wether lambs, $8.25@8.50; desirable rangers, $8.50@8.75; native bucks, $7.25@7.50; throwouts, $5.00@6.00, fat ewes $3.00@3.50; range feeding lambs, $6.00@7.00; practical top, $7.25.

HOGS—Receipts, 10,000 including 7,500 direct; fairly active; 15 to 25c lower; top $9.65; bulk 170-220 lbs., $9.40@9.60; packing sows, $7.50@8.75; compared week ago mostly 15 to 25c lower; packing sows around 25c higher; shippers took 2,000; estimated holdovers, 1,000; light lights, god and choice 140-160 lbs., $9.00@9.45; light weights, 160-200 lbs., $9.25@9.60; medium weights, 200-250 lbs., $9.40@9.75 nominal; heavy weights, 250-350 lbs., $9.40@9.75 nominal; packing sows, medium to good 275-500 lbs., $7.35@8.75; pigs, good and choice 100-120 lbs., $8.00@9.15.

CLUB BOYS AT NATIONAL MEET

4-H Dairy Calf Members Will Compete at St. Louis.

Representatives of Nebraska's 4-H dairy calf club members left Lincoln Saturday to compete in the National Dairy show to be held in St Louis, Mo., next week.

This group is made up of dairy exhibitors, a dairy judging team, dairy demonstration team, and a poultry demonstration team. They hope to better the record made last year at the show when the judging team won first on judging Holsteins, and ranked second in judging all breeds, while the two demonstration teams each won fourth place in their respective classes.

Entries Shipped.

Teams from twenty-six states competed for honors in 1929. It is expected that the competition will be as keen this year.

The 4-H entries were shipped to St. Louis Thursday. The twenty-seven exhibits included two groups of Guernsey cattle, and one group each of Brown Swiss, Ayrshires, and Holsteins, selected from Lancaster, Douglas, Gage, Sarpy, Cass, Webster, Seward and Dodge counties Donald Egger of Lancaster county and Paul Rolfsmeier of Seward county, two club boys, have charge of the two cars of cattle. The other thirty-five boys and girls were to drive to St. Louis accompanied by L. I. Frisbie, state club leader; O. H. Liebers, manager of Nebraska Dairy Development society, and county extension agents, Paul F. Taggart, Webster county; D. D. Wainscott, Cass county, and C. F. Bayles, Clay county.

Judges to Compete.

In competition with other states will be the judging team from Webster county consisting of Russell Clatte, Orville Turner, and Edward Pavelka, with James Morey, local leader. Cass county represents the state with its dairy demonstration team of Glen Heneger and Ray Smith with S. Ray Smith, leader. Catherine and John Roberts, with Billie Donahue of Clay county, will compete for honors with their poultry demonstration.

A considerable portion of the expense of the trip will be defrayed by winnings of prize stock. Additional funds have been subscribed locally in the counties represented as well as by the Nebraska Farmer, Beatrice Creamery Co., Lincoln chamber of commerce, Roberts Dairy Co. of Lincoln, Fairmont Creamery Co., former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Carl R. Gray, Ford Hovey, W. Dale Clark, and Nebraska Dairymen's association to send these 4-H members on the trip.

POLICE AUTOMOTIVE SHOP IS RESTORED

Equipment to Be Cared For in Own Department Again Anderson Announces.

Re-establishment of the police department repair shop for the servicing of all police automotive equipment was announced Saturday morning by Acting Chief Anderson. The move was begun Saturday, and the shops, to be located in the police garage at Tenth and Q streets, will be functioning Monday.

The police repair shop was discontinued by Peter Johnstone, and merged with the fire department shop in the main building on Haymarket square, all the police repair equipment being transferred to it.

The re-establishment of a police shop will result in a considerable saving, and better servicing of equipment, Acting Chief Anderson believes. "Jimmy" James, newly appointed officer who formerly served as police mechanic, will have charge of the police shop, serving as master mechanic, the acting chief stated. A full-time mechanic will be employed in addition, and will be sworn in as an officer to serve in emergencies.

The police department repair bill the last year amounted to nearly $3,500, according to Anderson. He expects this to be pared considerably under the new arrangement.

SKELETON FOUND AT CRIME SCENE

Fourth Chicago Gangster Believed Victim of 'Little Massacre.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(AP)—On the exact spot where in May, 1929 the "little massacre" of Chicago gangsters occurred, a human skelton has been found.

The place is on the outskirts of Hammond, Ind., at Torrence avenue and 139th street. It was there that the three gangsters, Scalise, Anselmi and Guinta, were assassinated after having been "taken for a ride."

Excavators discovered the skeleton yesterday. A hurried examination failed to disclose either the possible cause of death or the approximate time for burial. A coroner's investigation was called for today.

The slaying of Scalise, Anselmi and Guinta, all known as aides of Al Capone, was generally regarded as a sequel to the massacre of seven George (Bugs) Moran gangsters on St. Valentine's day of last year.

Discovery of the skeleton has suggested to authorities the possibility that the three Capone men may not hae been the only ones slain in the "little massacre."

SKELETON FOUND AT CRIME SCENE

Fourth Chicago Gangster Believed Victim of 'Little Massacre.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(AP)—On the exact spot where in May, 1929 the "little massacre" of Chicago gangsters occurred, a human skelton has been found.

The place is on the outskirts of Hammond, Ind., at Torrence avenue and 139th street. It was there that the three gangsters, Scalise, Anselmi and Guinta, were assassinated after having been "taken for a ride."

Excavators discovered the skeleton yesterday. A hurried examination failed to disclose either the possible cause of death or the approximate time for burial. A coroner's investigation was called for today.

The slaying of Scalise, Anselmi and Guinta, all known as aides of Al Capone, was generally regarded as a sequel to the massacre of seven George (Bugs) Moran gangsters on St. Valentine's day of last year.

Discovery of the skeleton has suggested to authorities the possibility that the three Capone men may not hae been the only ones slain in the "little massacre."

LABOR SUPPORTS LAME DUCK BILL

Federation Votes to Continue Reorganization Drive in South.

BOSTON, Oct. 11 — (AP) — The American Federation of Labor annua convention here today stood adjourned until next Thursday with the exception of a few committee meetings and conferences of state federation delegations. Delegates devoted the day to recreation.

The convention yesterday took action on a group of resolutions and extracts from the report of the executive council. Authorization of the issuance of an appeal to affiliated organizatons of the federation for financial aid for the 4,000 striking textile workers of Danville, Va., and decision to continue the campaign of reorganization in the south were the most important of these.

The convention also voted favorably on resolutions which favored a drive for the equalization of labor conditions, including working hours, in the New England states; supported a drive to organize teachers; opposed the use of prison labor in competition with union labor, and urged enactment by congress of the Norris "lame duck" bill which was directed at United States senators who failed to be re-elected.

TREASURY ISSUE OVERSUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—The treasury's $102,525,000 issue of 62-day treasury bills, for which bids were opened yesterday, was oversubscribed by almost $260,000,000.

The bills, offered on October 7, to care for the immediate needs of the government, are to be issued in two series, about half to be dated October 15 and maturing December 16, and the remainder to be dated October 16 and maturing December 17. The average price of the bills to be issued is about 99.680. The average rate on a bank discount basis is about 1.85 per cent.

AMSPOKER NAMED TO NATIONAL GROUP

Lincoln Man Member Executive Committee of American Bowling Congress.

B. N. Amspoker, 2734 Dudley street, has been appointed as a member of the executive committee of the American Bowling Congress to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Harold George of Omaha, according to word received from A. L. Longtree of Milwaukee, Wis., secretary of the congress.

The membership of the congress is composed of a representative from each state under the jurisdiction of the national organization. Mr. Amspoker's appointment comes following the announcement of the resignation of Mr. George, who has moved to Chicago and therefore is not able to serve as Nebraska's representative on the executive committee.

Up to the time of his appointment as a member of the national executive body he served as secretary of the Lincoln Bowling association for a period of ten years. During this time he was also secretary of the Nebraska Bowling association for three years.

According to Mr. Amspoker arrangements are nearing completion for the annual midwest bowling tournament which will be held in Omaha next month. Entries have already been received from teams in Kansas City, Minneapolis Des Moines, St. Louis and Chicago. Reservations have also been made by teams from Wichita and Denver. Mr. Amspoker stated Saturday afternoon that it is expected that twenty-five teams from Lincoln will enter the midwest competition.

Yale Grad Would Limit Football Crowds to Chosen Few

Eli Alumnus Keen to Shut Stadium Gates to General Public at all Grid Games

BY BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Here is an item in the paper: "Discussing the future of football, Farwell Knapp, of Hartford, Yale '16, who insists that he loves football and wants the game saved, wrote in the current issue of the Yale alumni weekly that he recommends Yale limit attendance at future football games to undergraduates, faculty and perhaps a few invited guests.

"This he insists, will come appropriately when it is no longer necessary to run football as a huge money-making institution. The university, he states, has no conceivable duty to amuse and entertain the public. He urges Yale to lead the way in such a reform."

Farwell, in short, wants football, in the words of the Eli song, "For God, For Country and For Yale" and a few invited guests. Because Yale has "no conceivable duty to amuse and entertain the public," he wants the public barred. Well, if they would take Albie Booth, a public school boy who stood higher on the gridiron than he did in th inner sanctums last year, out of the line-up, I imagine the public would manage to struggle along somehow.

Some Yale History.

If Farwell can stand the blunt and bitter truth, there have been Yale teams and Yale games the past ten years that did not amuse and entertain the public, or anybody else, least of all the Yale men who suffered through them.

Mr. Knapp writes that now that it is "no longer necessary to run football as a huge money-making institution." Putting that in plain language, he apparently means that how that Yale has got all the field houses and gymnasiums and baseball cages and golf courses it can use, the gates can be slammed with impunity in the faces of those who helped build them. That part of the paying clientele, at any rate, which has not been subjected to a broad and democratic Yale education.

Of course, Yale never did want paying guests at her games—much. That's the reason she built the largest football stadium in the world.

In that part of his article that is available Farwell says nothing about providing for the rooters of the other team. Possibly he never thought of them, or perhaps he planned to give them some small space at the end of the stadium behind the goal posts. That would be generous of Farwell. And they could put the invited guests behind the goal posts on the other end.

Just a Pipe Dream.

But I warn him thus early that he will have to be extremely careful about these invitations and see to it that they do not fall into the wrong hands. Some of those undergraduates will be carrying them down and peddling them to Mike Jacobs at the market price, just as they do their tickets now.

There isn't and never has been, so far as I know, a public sale of tickets for Yale football games. But since it isn't exclusive enough as it stands for Farwell, he should go the limit and omit the visiting colleges all together. Just play class games. Then Farwell will get his wish. There will quickly come a Saturday when he can look all about him in the stadium and not see an alien face. He will be the only one there.

I suppose I have already wasted too much space on it. But it is articles of this sort that give the general public a clear insight into what our great universities, such as Yale and Harvard and Princeton, really are not.

Decision To Berg Over Fargo Flyer

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Jack (Kid) Berg, British perpetual motion machine, has atoned partially at least for the one bad setback of his boxing career.

Two years ago Berg was stopped in five rounds by Billy Petrolle, the Fargo, N. D., express, and later Petrolle held him to a draw. Last night Berg poured in a never-ending stream of punches to Petrolle's face and body to win a clean decision in ten rounds of spectacular milling in Madison Square Garden, and thus again revenge for his earlier setback.

Petrolle, a dangerous puncher, gave the British lightweights lots of trouble all the way but he tired badly in the closing rounds to let Berg gallop off with the decision. There were no knockdowns.

Berg weighed 135½ pounds; Petrolle 137.

HAWKEYE ELEVEN MEETS CENTENARY

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 11—(INS)—University of Iowa's football team had an elaborate passing attack ready to uncork against Centenary today in a game that has taken on intersectional aspect.

The weather, however, was in favor of the visiting team from the south. Temperatures in the eighties were expected as the afternoon wore on, a distinct advantage for Centenary's squad.

Final practice in the Iowa game was confined to kicking and a brief signal drill. The Centenary squad arrived yesterday and stayed in seclusion until game time.

Captain Brown, after his sensational passing exhibition yesterday, was expected to match the Hawkeyes' overhead flinging.

SCORELESS GAME ON COTNER GRID

Bulldogs and Chillicothe Teams Present Tight Defensive Play.

Coach Sed Hartman's Cotner Bulldogs battled Chillicothe Business college to a scoreless tie on the Bethany gridiron, Friday afternoon. The game was full of thrills, each team having excellent chances to score only to meet impregnable defenses within the ten yard lines. Cotner threatened first when two passes by Kitchen, one to Haulman and one to Mills, gained 27 yards and put the pigskin on the Chillicothe 3-yard marker early in the first quarter. Four line plunges gained but 2½ yards and Chillicothe took the ball on downs on its one foot line. This was the only time the Bulldogs really theatened.

Chillicothe was in scoring distance several times, only to have the Bulldog defense strengthen and lose the ball. Late in the first canto dashes through tackle carried the ball 50 yards down the field to the Cotner 20-yard line where Watkins recovered a Missouri fumble to stop the advance.

Early in the second quarter a pass, Timmons to Potts, gained 28 yards placing the oval on the Cotner 20-yard stripe but a fumble and an incompleted pass gave Cotner the ball. Near the close of the first half Cotner advanced the ball to midfield after Kitchen had returned a Chillicothe punt 20 yards. A Bulldog fumbile was recovered by Chillicothe and Timmons tried to score by the aerial route. The advance was checked when Mills intercepted a Missouri pass in midfield as the half ended.

Cotner Defense Holds.

The Business college offense again began to click early in the third period when passes by Timmons to McMullen and Parrish took the pigskin to the Cotner 40-yard line from which point Timmons almost got away for a counter. He was downed on the Cotner 20-yard stripe after a fine run and the Bulldog defense again thwarted the visitors attempts. Cotner got the ball near midfield in the latter part of the third quarter after Kitchen took an advantage in an exchange of punts, and the Cotner offense took the ball into Chillicothe territory. A bad pass from center lost 30 yards to check what might have been a rally. As the third period closed Timmons lugged the ball to the Cotner 42-yard line and Potts ripped 24 yards off right guard to the Cotner 18-yard mark. Four plays including a completed pass gained 8 yards and Hartman's charges punted out of danger from their 10-yard line.

Coleman Breaks Through.

The future secretaries came right back after Timmons returned the Cotner punt to the 30-yard line and in four plays had the oval again on the Cotner 11-yard stripe. Coleman, Cotner end, threw Timmons for a 25-yard loss on the third play to check the rush. Cotner had a chance toward the end of the game when Timmons fumbled a punt and was finally downed on the Chillicothe 2-yard line. Potts punted out of danger and Timmons intrecepted a Bulldog pass to again get the ball in Cotner territory. Just as the game closed Haulman took a pass from Kitchen and lugged the ball to the Chillicothe 16-yard line but Cotner lost the ball when another pass went wild over the goal line. The game ended with the ball in midfield.

Kriondcris ripped the Cotner line for long gains before he was removed when injured in the second quarter. Timmons made many long gains and was the chief offensive threat. He returned punts in fine shape. No backs could gain consistently however. Williams and Innes were strong in the Chillicothe line on both defense and defense. In the Cotner line Coleman played a sweet game at end, and Jenkins and the Gardner brothers were great on the defense when the Cotner goal was threatened. Kitchen was the only Cotner back able to gain consistently. Mills and Branstitre played well defensively but could not get started on the offense.

ENGINEERS WIN OVER FAIRBURY

Dormer Leads Havelock Attack; Shoptowns In 20-7 Victory.

Eleven fighting Havelock Engineers took the field at Havelock, Friday night and measured Fairbury by a 20-7 score. Taken all in all the game was a rather freakish one as Havelock's second touchdown came when a Fairbury man failed to touch the ball down in the end zone after the ball had been kicked over the goal line. Then on top of that Havelock was penalized a total of 195 yards during the time of the game.

Dan Dormer, the "Red" Grange of the Engineers, ran wild during the conflict. After Havelock had been penalized 15 yards making the count second down and twenty-five yards to go Dan started on an end run, cut back through tackle and raced seventy-five yards for the first Havelock tally. On the following kick-off Young kicked over the Fairbury goal line and Fairbury failed to touch the ball down in the end zone and Bailey fell on it netting another touchdown for the Engineers.

Fairbury High Scores.

The lone Fairbury tally came in the second quarter when Valhos intercepted a pass from Finning and raced 80 yards before "Click" Law could down him. However the ball was so close to the goal line that Valhos carried the ball over on a line plunge as a conclusion to his long sprint.

In the third quarter the "Galloping Ghost of the Gridiron" in the person of Dan Dormer was present again and, after featuring in one long march down the field only to lose the ball on downs, he again started down the field. After making 40 yards in 3 downs Dormer broke loose for a forty-yard sprint which netted another touchdown.

The outstanding Fairbury players were Hose and Denney in the line and Captain Zanders and Valhos in the backfield. Denney played part of the last quarter although he was hurt. Bud Young and J. Frueauf featured the line play for the Shoptown clan while Dormer and Finning made names for themselves at carrying the ball.

Cardinal Pitcher In Divorce Suit

CANTON, O., Oct. 11—(INS)—The marital life of Burleigh Grimes, St. Louis Cardinal pitching ace, went "phifft" again today when his wife, Mrs. Florence Ruth Grimes, filed suit for divorce in common pleas court here.

Mrs. Grimes, who only last April fought a divorce action instigated by the baseball star, charged her husband with gossiping to people in their hometown (Minerva) in order to humilate her and to make himself popular; with causing her mental anguish by his divorce suit and by associating with other women and receiving "passionate letters."

Grimes' "wise-cracking" on the ball field and not her talk caused his unpopularity among his team mates, she charged in her petition. Mrs. Grimes also alleged that he abused and struck her at a hunting camp in Wisconsin.

Claiming that Grimes gets $20,000 a year with the Cardinals, Mrs. Grimes asked for alimony and requested that he be divested of power right in their Minerva property.

JACKSON STEPS ON ASHLAND HI

Beechner Gridders Run Wild To Capture 53-0 Victory.

Coach Ralph Beechner's Jackson high squad ran rough shod over a light and inexperienced Ashland team, Friday afternoon in the Wesleyan bowl. The final score was 53-0, the Ashland lads gamely held their much larger opponents to a single touchdown in the first and third quarters, but could not stand the hard-driving offense of the Methodist team toward the close of the game.

Jackson outweighed Coach Harrel's boys by fifteen pounds to the man and showed much greater experience. The score while lopsided gives no indication of the fine battle the Ashland team put up. The out-state lads made seven first downs, driving off tackle for good gains on several occasions. In the final quarter, lack of reserve strength also began to tell and the Jackson backs dashed through the line, around end, or passed for long gains. Jordan featured in the closing minutes with two touchdowns after long runs.

Jackson Scores Early.

The Methodists scored early in the first period. Ashland had worked the ball to midfield but lost on downs. On the first play Mangold went off right tackle for 38 yards, lugging the ball to the Ashland 12-yard line. Ashland held for three plays but on the fourth Mangold went through guard for the first touchdown. Ashland uncorked a well-drilled offense after the next kickoff. Gordon, Miller and Weaver went around end and through right tackle, ripping off several first downs to reach the Jackson 26-yard line but there lost the ball on downs.

Jackson launched an offensive that never stopped until another touchdown had been chalked up. Mangold and Stith alternated to carry the ball for 74 yards through the line. Mangold finally scoring. During the second quarter two more touchdowns were scored. Stith, halfback, lugging the pigskin over on both occasions. The second half found Kanzler who had started the game at tackle, shifted to the backfield in the Jackson lineup. Jackson failed to score during the third quarter but Kanzler and Jordan had carried the ball within easy scoring distance before the quarter ended. Jordan went over for the touchdown on the second play in the last period.

The Ashland defense went completely to pieces in the final period and the game became a rout. Jordan caught long passes for two touchdowns during this quarter and Brown scored another. Ashland tried many long passes in a vain attempt to score but failed to complete any tosses, several being intercepted. Fitz, Johnson, and Barnes were outstanding in the Jackson line, Fitz being in particularly good form. In Coach Beechner's backfield Stith, Mangold and Jordan gained the most yards and between them scored all but one touchown. Wallace and Richards played well in the Ashland forward wall, while Weaver and Miller, were wel in Coach Harrel's backfiel

METHODISTS IN WIN OVER PERU

Wesleyan Gridders Turn In 13-0 Victory Over Bobcats.

Nebraska Wesleyan came through with a versatile attack to defeat Peru Normal, 13-0, Friday night and chalk up the first Methodist win of the season. The game was played in the newly-lighted Wesleyan bowl before one of the largest crowds ever to witness a Wesleyan game.

Both touchdowns were scored in the second quarter. The first score came when Gibb shot a long pass from his 40-yard line to McConaha. The pass was partly blocked by a Peru back and fell in the arms of Miller, speedy Methodist half who squirmed and dodged for 30 yards and finally fell over the final chalk mark. The second six points were also the result of a deceptive forward passing attack. A poor punt by Sautter gave Wesleyan possession of the oval on the Methodist 40-yard line. A pass, Thompson to Miller, gained 30 yards and another forward flip to Gibb took the ball to the Bobcat 15-yard stripe. Three plunges off tackle by Miller and Thompson carried the pigskin to the 3-yard marker and Gibb drove over on the first play.

Plenty of Offense.

The game was featured by powerful offenses. Both teams made twelve first downs and the backs got away for some fine runs which kept the crowd on its feet. Peru resorted to an aerial attack toward the close of the battle which added thrills. Throughout the game Wesleyan combined powerful off-tackle thrusts with clever forward passes to show a complete reversal of form from earlier games.

From the opening kickoff the game went at top speed. Peru started with a rush and carried the ball into Methodist territory before Gibb intercepted a pass to stop the anvance. After an exchange of punts, Sautter, Hurst and Hatcher lugged the ball to the Wesleyan 20-yard line. Hatcher passed to Wicina but the Peru end was over the end zone, Wesleyan taking the ball. After more punting Peru carried the ball to midfield and here a short punt out of bounds on the Wesleyan 40-yard line led up to the first Methodist touchdown. Wesleyan got the ball under similar circumstances shortly afterward to make the second score. Peru had again marched to midfield and punted. The kick was high and short going out of bounds on the Methodist 40-yard stripe. Just six plays were needed to get across for the points that put the game on ice.

Peru Uncorks Threat.

Early in the third period Briggs halted a Bobcat advance by intercepting a pass on the Wesleyan 40-yard line. After a Wesleyan punt Peru again came to midfield and this time Winship, Methodist guard, intercepted a partly blocked Peru pass. Coach Waldorf's team carried the ball within scoring distance when Thompson passed to McConaha for 13 yards and drives by Miller took the oval to the Peru 20-yard mark. Miller, Peru center, intercepted a Methodist pass to throw fire on the rally, and Peru immediately stole the show. Littrell, Hatcher, Hurst and Sautter alternated to lug the ball 50 yards in four plays to the Wesleyan 30-yard line. A Peru fumble which Wesleyan recovered ended the fireworks.

The fourth quarter saw Peru discard caution and throw passes far and wide. One drive carried the ball to the Wesleyan 20-yard stripe again but Nichols intercepted a toss by Sauter to permit Thompson to punt out of danger. While the yardage gained from scrimmage and first downs were quite even, Wesleyan had the punch to sustain its offensive drives across the Peru goal while all Bobcat advances were halted around the 20-yard line. Wesleyan also had a distinct edge in punting; Miller and Thompson consistently getting off long high boots, while Sautter made at least two short kicks that caused trouble.

Game Is Well Played.

Sautter, Hatcher and Hurst made several long runs around end and through tackle, while MacSwan and Shestak played splendidly in the Bobcat line. In the Wesleyan lineup the entire backfield functioned well. Miller was the spark plug, but all four starting backs were able to kick pass or run and the Methodists displayed a strong offense. Miller's punting was great and he was able to gain yards when they were needed most. Briggs romped for several long gains late in the last period. In the Wesleyan forward wall, Menke, the freshman tackle who replaced the injured Bonham, played like a veteran, tackling Bobcat backs for losses many times and charging well. Bridges and Smith also went well in the front line.

Blow After Bell Costs Von Porat

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(AP)—As a candidate for heavyweight boxing honors Otto Von Porat, the stately Norwegian, still is neither betwixt nor between.

Von Porat made a comeback appearance in the coliseum last night, his first since William Stribling knocked him limp in a round several months ago, and knocked out Angus Snyder of Ft. Dodge, Kas., in the first round, only to lose on a foul for striking the Kansan after the bell had sounded.

The Norwegian paralyzer, whose stiff punching ability has kept him from being counted out of a place in the front rank of heavyweights, was a much better fighter than when he lost to Stribling, and when the bell rang, had Snyder virtually out. Amid the confusion caused by Von Porat's surprising aggressiveness, neither fighter heard the bell and Otto lelted Snyder on the jaw with his right. Snyder was knocked stiff and had to be carried to his corner, where Referee Ed Purdy raised his hand in accordance with the ruling of the judges.

Cornhuskers vs. Sooners Opening Game of Season In Big Six Grid Circle

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 11—Old Man Psychology still is the champion gloom-spreader in the camp of the Oklahoma Sooners. Followers of Nebraska football certainly have excellent reason to remember the old man's tricks. It is on record that an overconfident Cornhusker squad invaded Oklahoma six years ago, on which occasion its members gorged themselves on tales depicting an out-classed team of Sooners and predictions of a lop-sided Nebraska victory.

The actual happenings, however, scarcely were calculated to incite joy within Nebraska ranks as the Sooner horde made the most of its opportunities by turning back the overconfident Cornhuskers by a margin of two touchdowns to one.

Sooners Set Bait.

Similar psychological maneuvers were in evidence today in advance of the clash of the Huskers and Sooners on Owen Field. Oklahoma City newspapers have busily devoted their space and editorial efforts to the cunning task of convincing Coach Bible's proteges that this afternoon's affair out there on the Bermuda-sodded gridiron is merely a romp for the Biblemen and that the only doubt as to the ultimate result involves the dimensions of Nebraska's triumph.

Coach Ad Lindsey has done his bit toward contributing to the cockiness of the Cornhuskers by announcing that his pupils will be out-beefed by an overwhelming margin, wherefore the Oklahoma mentor is moved almost to tears by the utter sadness of the fate which awaits the Sooner cause.

Huskers Not Biting.

The old man and his first lieutenant, Coach Lindsey, may catch the Cornhuskers napping, but I doubt it. Reminders of the disaster of 1924 have been passed along to members of the present Nebraska squad and Coach Bible assured me this morning that the Cornhuskers positively will not bite at the psychology bait. Instead, a determined aggregation of Huskers will step out on the field today, confident only that they will have a fine old fight on their hands but resolute in the determination that Nebraska's prestige as champions of the Big Six conference for the past two years must be upheld.

Coach Bible and his Huskers arrived in Oklahoma early Friday morning completing the trip from Lincoln without mishap, and devoted the forenoon hours to a tour of Oklahoma City's far-famed oil fields. The afternoon was given over to a trolley ride to Norman where the Husker squad of 34 gridders was put through a short session of running signals on Owen Field.

Bible had his men in action less than a half hour, as the October heat for which Oklahoma is noted was in evidence and the coach permitted nothing more strenuous than a brief limbering-up

ROBSON ELEVEN WALLOPS WAHOO

College View Steps Out To Run Up 54-0 Grid Victory.

The College View gridsters Friday plunged their way through a comparatively weak Wahoo eleven to a 54-0 victory on the College View gridiron. The Robson team's offense was functioning in a highly efficient manner and its defense prevented the Wahoo aggregation from earning a single first down.

On the fourth play of the game, Wahoo punted and the ball went straight up into the air. Big Keith Eno snatched the oval and galloped twenty yards for a touchdown. This was the first of eight markers scored by the Robsonmen. The entire College View bacfield was gaining consistently on off-tackle plays and around the ends. Harold Dresselhaus, a sophomore halfback, was the outstanding College View ball-lugger.

Wahoo Passes Fail.

The Wahoo passing attack, that worked so efficiently against Nebraska City last week, failed to function against the Robsonmen Of the nine passes that were attempted by Wahoo, only one was completed. All attempts made by Wahoo to penetrate the College View forward wall were quickly smothered by the husky purple and gold linemen.

The College View eleven relied almost entirely on power plays for their yardage. The aerial attack of the Robsonmen was far from satisfactory. College View completed only two of the twelve of the passes they attempted All of the Robsonmen, that were in the game, showed up exceedingly well. Gustafson and Safranek performed creditably for Wahoo.

Frosh Scrimmage Against Nubbins

The Nebraska freshman football aggregation battled for nearly an hour with the nubbins on the practice field in the stadium Friday afternoon in a game marred by frequent fumbles and offsides. Neither team scored, although the nubbins penetrated to the Frosh two-yard line and the yearlings returns the compliment, going to the nubbin seven-yard line before being stopped.

A perusal of the Freshman lineup shows that eight former Lincoln high school pigskin stars started the fray. Kilbourne Schmitt, Bishop, Prestegaard Bauer, Sauer and Masterson of the 1929 powerhouse and Austin Red and Black captain a few years back, being combined with O'Brien of Omaha South, Elliott of Omaha North and Norwood of York to form the starters. Bob Raugh, another former Brownie, started for the nubbins.

Both coaches—Browne and Day—gave many men chances to show their wares. The nubbins were guilty of several fumbles during the afternoon, but the freshman sympathized and collected about the same number.

Smith, Penny and Raugh featured in the nubbin backfield, with Rist and Don Hulbert featuring the line play. Bauer and Sauer, the ex-Lincoln "Gold Dust Twins" combination, were outstanding in the first-year backfield, while Bishop and Elliott looked best of the numerous linemen who saw service.

Freshmen were to celebrate Saturday with another practice session, Coach Browne ordering his charges to appear in suit at 4:30 for a practice among themselves. The Friday starting lineups:

Yale Grad Would Limit Football Crowds to Chosen Few

Eli Alumnus Keen to Shut Stadium Gates to General Public at all Grid Games

BY BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Here is an item in the paper: "Discussing the future of football, Farwell Knapp, of Hartford, Yale '16, who insists that he loves football and wants the game saved, wrote in the current issue of the Yale alumni weekly that he recommends Yale limit attendance at future football games to undergraduates, faculty and perhaps a few invited guests.

"This he insists, will come appropriately when it is no longer necessary to run football as a huge money-making institution. The university, he states, has no conceivable duty to amuse and entertain the public. He urges Yale to lead the way in such a reform."

Farwell, in short, wants football, in the words of the Eli song, "For God, For Country and For Yale" and a few invited guests. Because Yale has "no conceivable duty to amuse and entertain the public," he wants the public barred. Well, if they would take Albie Booth, a public school boy who stood higher on the gridiron than he did in th inner sanctums last year, out of the line-up, I imagine the public would manage to struggle along somehow.

Some Yale History.

If Farwell can stand the blunt and bitter truth, there have been Yale teams and Yale games the past ten years that did not amuse and entertain the public, or anybody else, least of all the Yale men who suffered through them.

Mr. Knapp writes that now that it is "no longer necessary to run football as a huge money-making institution." Putting that in plain language, he apparently means that now that Yale has got all the field houses and gymnasiums and baseball cages and golf courses it can use, the gates can be slammed with impunity in the faces of those who helped build them. That part of the paying clientele, at any rate, which has not been subjected to a broad and democratic Yale education.

Of course, Yale never did want paying guests at her games—much. That's the reason she built the largest football stadium in the world.

In that part of his article that is available Farwell says nothing about providing for the rooters of the other team. Possibly he never thought of them, or perhaps he planned to give them some small space at the end of the stadium behind the goal posts. That would be generous of Farwell. And they could put the invited guests behind the goal posts on the other end.

Just a Pipe Dream.

But I warn him thus early that he will have to be extremely careful about these invitations and see to it that they do not fall into the wrong hands. Some of those undergraduates will be carrying them down and peddling them to Mike Jacobs at the market price, just as they do their tickets now.

There isn't and never has been, so far as I know, a public sale of tickets for Yale football games. But since it isn't exclusive enough as it stands for Farwell, he should go the limit and omit the visiting colleges all together. Just play class games. Then Farwell will get his wish. There will quickly come a Saturday when he can look all about him in the stadium and not see an alien face. He will be the only one there.

I suppose I have already wasted too much space on it. But it is articles of this sort that give the general public a clear insight into what our great universities, such as Yale and Harvard and Princeton, really are not.

SCORELESS GAME ON COTNER GRID

Bulldogs and Chillicothe Teams Present Tight Defensive Play.

Coach Sed Hartman's Cotner Bulldogs battled Chillicothe Business college to a scoreless tie on the Bethany gridiron, Friday afternoon. The game was full of thrills, each team having excellent chances to score only to meet impregnable defenses within the ten yard lines. Cotner threatened first when two passes by Kitchen, one to Haulman and one to Mills, gained 27 yards and put the pigskin on the Chillicothe 3-yard marker early in the first quarter. Four line plunges gained but 2½ yards and Chillicothe took the ball on downs on its one foot line. This was the only time the Bulldogs really theatened.

Chillicothe was in scoring distance several times, only to have the Bulldog defense strengthen and lose the ball. Late in the first canto dashes through tackle carried the ball 50 yards down the field to the Cotner 20-yard line where Watkins recovered a Missouri fumble to stop the advance.

Early in the second quarter a pass, Timmons to Potts, gained 28 yards placing the oval on the Cotner 20-yard stripe but a fumble and an incompleted pass gave Cotner the ball. Near the close of the first half Cotner advanced the ball to midfield after Kitchen had returned a Chillcothe punt 20 yards. A Bulldog fumbile was recovered by Chillicothe and Timmons tried to score by the aerial route. The advance was checked when Mills intercepted a Missouri pass in midfield as the half ended.

Cotner Defense Holds.

The Business college offense again began to click early in the third period when passes by Timmons to McMullen and Parrish took the pigskin to the Cotner 40-yard line from which point Timmons almost got away for a counter. He was downed on the Cotner 20-yard stripe after a fine run and the Bulldog defense again thwarted the visitors attempts. Cotner got the ball near midfield in the latter part of the third quarter after Kitchen took an advantage in an exchange of punts, and the Cotner offense took the ball into Chillicothe territory. A bad pass from center lost 30 yards to check what might have been a rally. As the third period closed Timmons lugged the ball to the Cotner 42-yard line and Potts ripped 24 yards off right guard to the Cotner 18-yard mark. Four plays including a completed pass gained 8 yards and Hartman's charges punted out of danger from their 10-yard line.

Coleman Breaks Through.

The future secretaries came right back after Timmons returned the Cotner punt to the 30-yard line and in four plays had the oval again on the Cotner 11-yard stripe. Coleman, Cotner end, threw Timmons for a 25-yard loss on the third play to check the rush. Cotner had a chance toward the end of the game when Timmons fumbled a punt and was finally downed on the Chillicothe 2-yard line. Potts punted out of danger and Timmons intrecepted a Bulldog pass to again get the ball in Cotner territory. Just as the game closed Haulman took a pass from Kitchen and lugged the ball to the Chmillicothe 16-yard line but Cotner lost the ball when another pass went wild over the goal line. The game ended with the ball in midfield.

Krionderis ripped the Cotner line for long gains before he was removed when injured in the second quarter. Timmons made many long gains and was the chief offensive threat. He returned punts in fine shape. No backs could gain consistently however. Williams and Innes were strong in the Chillicothe line on both defense and defense. In the Cotner line Coleman played a sweet game at end, and Jenkins and the Gardner brothers were great on the defense when the Cotner goal was threatened. Kitchen was the only Cotner back able to gain consistently. Mills and Branstitre played well defensively but could not get started on the offense.

Decision To Berg Over Fargo Flyer

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Jack (Kid) Berg, British perpetual motion machine, has atoned partially at least for the one bad setback of his boxing career.

Two years ago Berg was stopped in five rounds by Billy Petrolle, the Fargo, N. D., express, and later Petrolle held him to a draw. Last night Berg poured in a never-ending stream of punches to Petrolle's face and body to win a clean decision in ten rounds of spectacular milling in Madison Square Garden, and thus again revenge for his earlier setback.

Petrolle, a dangerous puncher, gave the British lightweights lots of trouble all the way but he tired badly in the closing rounds to let Berg gallop off with the decision. There were no knockdowns.

Berg weighed 135¾ pounds; Petrolle 137.

HAWKEYE ELEVEN MEETS CENTENARY

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 11—(INS)—University of Iowa's football team had an elaborate passing attack ready to uncork against Centenary today in a game that has taken on intersectional aspect.

The weather, however, was in favor of the visiting team from the south. Temperatures in the eighties were expected as the afternoon wore on, a distinct advantage for Centenary's squad.

Final practice in the Iowa game was confined to kicking and a brief signal drill. The Centenary squad arrived yesterday and stayed in seclusion until game time.

Captain Brown, after his sensational passing exhibition yesterday, was expected to match the Hawkeyes' overhead flinging.

Maloney Suspended In New York State

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 — (AP) — Jimmy Maloney's sensational victory over Primo Carnera in Boston the other night has led to his suspension in New York.

The New York state athletic commission pinned an indefinite suspension on Maloney in accordance with the commission rule forbidding a boxer in good favor here to engage one who is ineligible. Carnera has been in disfavor here since the California commission suspended him in connection with an unsatisfactory bout in that state.

ENGINEERS WIN OVER FAIRBURY

Dormer Leads Havelock Attack; Shoptowns In 20-7 Victory.

Eleven fighting Havelock Engineers took the field at Havelock, Friday night and measured Fairbury by a 20-7 score. Taken all in all the game was a rather freakish one as Havelock's second touchdown came when a Fairbury man failed to touch the ball down in the end zone after the ball had been kicked over the goal line. Then on top of that Havelock was penalized a total of 195 yards during the time of the game.

Dan Dormer, the "Red" Grange of the Engineers, ran wild during the conflict. After Havelock had been penalized 15 yards making the count second down and twenty-five yards to go Dan started on an end run, cut back through tackle and raced seventy-five yards for the first Havelock tally. On the following kick-off Young kicked over the Fairbury goal line and Fairbury failed to touch the ball down in the end zone and Bailey fell on it netting another touchdown for the Engineers.

Fairbury High Scores.

The lone Fairbury tally came in the second quarter when Valhos intercepted a pass from Finning and raced 80 yards before "Click" Law could down him. However the ball was so close to the goal line that Valhos carried the ball over on a line plunge as a conclusion to his long sprint.

In the third quarter the "Galloping Ghost of the Gridiron" in the person of Dan Dormer was present again and, after featuring in one long march down the field only to lose the ball on downs, he again started down the field. After making 40 yards in 3 downs Dormer broke loose for a forty-yard sprint which netted another touchdown.

The outstanding Fairbury players were Hose and Denney in the line and Captain Zanders and Valhos in the backfield. Denney played part of the last quarter although he was hurt. Bud Young and J. Frueauf featured the line play for the Shoptown clan while Dormer and Finning made names for themselves at carrying the ball.

Cardinal Pitcher In Divorce Suit

CANTON, O., Oct. 11—(INS)—The marital life of Burleigh Grimes, St. Louis Cardinal pitching ace, went "phifft" again today when his wife, Mrs. Florence Ruth Grimes, filed suit for divorce in common pleas court here.

Mrs. Grimes, who only last April fought a divorce action instigated by the baseball star, charged her husband with gossiping to people in their hometown (Minerva) in order to humilate her and to make himself popular; with causing her mental anguish by his divorce suit and by associating with other women and receiving "passionate letters."

Grimes' "wise-cracking" on the ball field and not her talk caused his unpopularity among his team mates, she charged in her petition. Mrs. Grimes also alleged that he abused and struck her at a hunting camp in Wisconsin.

Claiming that Grimes gets $20,000 a year with the Cardinals, Mrs. Grimes asked for alimony and requested that he be divested of power right in their Minerva property.

JACKSON STEPS ON ASHLAND HI

Beechner Gridders Run Wild To Capture 53-0 Victory.

Coach Ralph Beechner's Jackson high squad ran rough shod over a light and inexperienced Ashland team, Friday afternoon in the Wesleyan bowl. The final score was 53-0, the Ashland lads gamely held their much larger opponents to a single touchdown in the first and third quarters, but could not stand the hard-driving offense of the Methodist team toward the close of the game.

Jackson outweighed Coach Harrel's boys by fifteen pounds to the man and showed much greater experience. The score while lopsided gives no indication of the fine battle the Ashland team put up. The out-state lads made seven first downs, driving off tackle for good gains on several occasions. In the final quarter, lack of reserve strength also began to tell and the Jackson backs dashed through the line, around end, or passed for long gains. Jordan featured in the closing minutes with two touchdowns after long runs.

Jackson Scores Early.

The Methodists scored early in the first period. Ashland had worked the ball to midfield but lost on downs. On the first play Mangold went off right tackle for 38 yards, lugging the ball to the Ashland 12-yard line. Ashland held for three plays but on the fourth Mangold went through guard for the first touchdown. Ashland uncorked a well-drilled offense after the next kickoff. Gordon, Miller and Weaver went around end and through right tackle, ripping off several first downs to reach the Jackson 26-yard line but there lost the ball on downs.

Jackson launched an offensive that never stopped until another touchdown had been chalked up. Mangold and Stith alternated to carry the ball for 74 yards through the line, Mangold finally scoring. During the second quarter two more touchdowns were scored, Stith, halfback, lugging the pigskin over on both occasions. The second half found Kanzler who had started the game at tackle, shifted to the backfield in the Jackson lineup. Jackson failed to score during the third quarter but Kanzler and Jordan had carried the ball within easy scoring distance before the quarter ended. Jordan went over for the touchdown on the second play in the last period.

The Ashland defense went completely to pieces in the final period and the game became a rout. Jordan caught long passes for two touchdowns during this quarter and Brown scored another. Ashland tried many long passes in a vain attempt to score but failed to complete any tosses, several being intercepted. Fitz, Johnson, and Barnes were outstanding in the Jackson line, Fitz being in particularly good form. In Coach Beechner's backfield Stith, Mangold and Jordan gained the most yards and between them scored all but one touchown. Wallace and Richards played well in the Ashland forward wall, while Weaver and Miller, were wel in Coach Harrel's backfiel

Wesleyan Gridders Turn In 13-0 Victory Over Bobcats.

Nebraska Wesleyan came through with a versatile attack to defeat Peru Normal, 13-0, Friday night and chalk up the first Methodist win of the season. The game was played in the newly-lighted Wesleyan bowl before one of the largest crowds ever to witness a Wesleyan game.

Both touchdowns were scored in the second quarter. The first score came when Gibb shot a long pass from his 40-yard line to McConaha. The pass was partly blocked by a Peru back and fell in the arms of Miller, speedy Methodist half who squirmed and dodged for 30 yards and finally fell over the final chalk mark. The second six points were also the result of a deceptive forward passing attack. A poor punt by Sautter gave Wesleyan possession of the oval on the Methodist 40-yard line. A pass, Thompson to Miller, gained 30 yards and another forward flip to Gibb took the ball to the Bobcat 15-yard stripe. Three plunges off tackle by Miller and Thompson carried the pigskin to the 3-yard marker and Gibb drove over on the first play.

Plenty of Offense.

The game was featured by powerful offenses. Both teams made twelve first downs and the backs got away for some fine runs which kept the crowd on its feet. Peru resorted to an aerial attack toward the close of the battle which added thrills. Throughout the game Wesleyan combined powerful off-tackle thrusts with clever forward passes to show a complete reversal of form from earlier games.

From the opening kickoff the game went at top speed. Peru started with a rush and carried the ball into Methodist territory before Gibb intercepted a pass to stop the anvance. After an exchange of punts, Sautter, Hurst and Hatcher lugged the ball to the Wesleyan 20-yard line. Hatcher passed to Wicina but the Peru end was over the end zone, Wesleyan taking the ball. After more punting Peru carried the ball to midfield and here a short punt out of bounds on the Wesleyan 40-yard line led up to the first Methodist touchdown. Wesleyan got the ball under similar circumstances shortly afterward to make the second score. Peru had again marched to midfield and punted. The kick was high and short going out of bounds on the Methodist 40-yard stripe. Just six plays were needed to get across for the points that put the game on ice.

Peru Uncorks Threat.

Early in the third period Briggs halted a Bobcat advance by intercepting a pass on the Wesleyan 40-yard line. After a Wesleyan pnnt Peru again came to midfield and this time Winship, Methodist guard, intercepted a partly blocked Peru pass. Coach Waldorf's team carried the ball within scoring distance when Thompson passed to McConaha for 13 yards and drives by Miller took the oval to the Peru 20-yard mark. Miller, Peru center, intercepted a Methodist pass to throw fire on the rally, and Peru immediately stole the show. Littrell, Hatcher, Hurst and Sautter alternated to lug the ball 50 yards in four plays to the Wesleyan 30-yard line. A Peru fumble which Wesleyan recovered ended the fireworks.

The fourth quarter saw Peru discard caution and throw passes far and wide. One drive carried the ball to the Wesleyan 20-yard stripe again but Nichols intercepted a toss by Sauter to permit Thompson to punt out of danger. While the yardage gained from scrimmage and first downs were quite even, Wesleyan had the punch to sustain its offensive drives across the Peru goal while all Bobcat advances were halted around the 20-yard line. Wesleyan also had a distinct edge in punting. Miller and Thompson consistently getting off long high boots, while Sautter made at least two short kicks that caused trouble.

Game Is Well Played.

Sautter, Hatcher and Hurst made several long runs around end and through tackle, while MacSwan and Shestak played splendidly in the Bobcat line. In the Wesleyan lineup the entire backfield functioned well. Miller was the spark plug, but all four starting backs were able to kick pass or run and the Methodists displayed a strong offense. Miller's punting was great and he was able to gain yards when they were needed most. Briggs romped for several long gains late in the last period. In the Wesleyan forward wall, Menke, the freshman tackle who replaced the injured Bonham, played like a veteran, tackling Bobcat backs for losses many times and charging well. Bridges and Smith also went well in the front line.

Blow After Bell Costs Von Porat

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(AP)—As a candidate for heavyweight boxing honors Otto Von Porat, the stately Norwegian, still is neither betwixt nor between.

Von Porat made a comeback appearance in the coliseum last night, his first since William Stribiing knocked him limp in a round several months ago, and knocked out Angus Snyder of Ft. Dodge, Kas., in the first round, only to lose on a foul for striking the Kansan after the bell had sounded.

The Norwegian paralyzer, whose stiff punching ability has kept him from being counted out of a place in the front rank of heavyweights, was a much better fighter than when he lost to Stribling, and when the bell rang, had Snyder virtually out. Amid the confusion caused by Von Porat's surprising aggressiveness, neither fighter heard the bell and Otto Lelted Snyder on the jaw with his right. Snyder was knocked stiff and had to be carried to his corner, where Referee Ed Purdy raised his hand in accordance with the ruling of the judges.

Cornhuskers vs. Sooners Opening Game of Season In Big Six Grid Circle

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 11—Old Man Psychology still is the champion gloom-spreader in the camp of the Oklahoma Sooners. Followers of Nebraska football certainly have excellent reason to remember the old man's tricks. It is on record that an overconfident Cornhusker squad invaded Oklahoma six years ago, on which occasion its members gorged themselves on tales depicting an out-classed team of Sooners and predictions of a lop-sided Nebraska victory.

The actual happenings, however, scarcely were calculated to incite joy within Nebraska ranks as the Sooner horde made the most of its opportunities by turning back the overconfident Cornhuskers by a margin of two touchdowns to one.

Sooners Set Bait.

Similar psychological maneuvers were in evidence today in advance of the clash of the Huskers and Sooners on Owen Field. Oklahoma City newspapers have busily devoted their space and editorial efforts to the cunning task of convincing Coach Bible's proteges that this afternoon's affair out there on the Bermuda-sodded gridiron is merely a romp for the Biblemen and that the only doubt as to the ultimate result involves the dimensions of Nebraska's triumph.

Coach Ad Lindsey has done his bit toward contributing to the cockiness of the Cornhuskers by announcing that his pupils will be out-beefed by an overwhelming margin, wherefore the Oklahoma mentor is moved almost to tears by the utter sadness of the fate which awaits the Sooner cause.

Huskers Not Biting.

The old man and his first lieutenant, Coach Lindsey, may catch the Cornhuskers napping, but I doubt it. Reminders of the disaster of 1924 have been passed along to members of the present Nebraska squad and Coach Bible assured me this morning that the Cornhuskers positively will not bite at the psychology bait. Instead, a determined aggregation of Huskers will step out on the field today, confident only that they will have a fine old fight on their hands but resolute in the determination that Nebraska's prestige as champions of the Big Six conference for the past two years must be upheld.

Coach Bible and his Huskers arrived in Oklahoma early Friday morning completing the trip from Lincoln without mishap, and devoted the forenoon hours to a tour of Oklahoma City's far-famed oil fields. The afternoon was given over to a trolley ride to Norman where the Husker squad of 34 gridders was put through a short session of running signals on Owen Field.

Bible had his men in action less than a half hour, as the October heat for which Oklahoma is noted was in evidence and the coach permitted nothing more strenuous than a brief limbering-up

ROBSON ELEVEN WALLOPS WAHOO

College View Steps Out To Run Up 54-0 Grid Victory.

The College View gridsters Friday plunged their way through a comparatively weak Wahoo eleven to a 54-0 victory on the College View gridiron. The Robson team's offense was functioning in a highly efficient manner and its defense prevented the Wahoo aggregation from earning a single first down.

On the fourth play of the game, Wahoo punted and the ball went straight up into the air. Big Keith Eno snatched the oval and galloped twenty yards for a touchdown. This was the first of eight markers scored by the Robsonmen. The entire College View bacfield was gaining consistently on off-tackle plays and around the ends. Harold Dresselhaus, a sophomore halfback, was the outstanding College View ball-lugger.

Wahoo Passes Fail.

The Wahoo passing attack, that worked so efficiently against Nebraska City last week, failed to function against the Robsonmen. Of the nine passes that were attempted by Wahoo, only one was completed. All attempts made by Wahoo to penetrate the College View forward wall were quickly smothered by the husky purple and gold linemen.

The College View eleven relied almost entirely on power plays for their yardage. The aerial attack of the Robsonmen was far from satisfactory. College View completed only two of the twelve of the passes they attempted All of the Robsonmen, that were in the game, showed up exceedingly well. Gustafson and Safranek performed creditably for Wahoo.

Frosh Scrimmage Against Nubbins

The Nebraska freshman football aggregation battled for nearly an hour with the nubbins on the practice field in the stadium Friday afternoon in a game marred by frequent fumbles and offsides. Neither team scored, although the nubbins penetrated to the Frosh two-yard line and the yearlings returns the compliment, going to the nubbin seven-yard line before being stopped.

A perusal of the Freshman line-up shows that eight former Lincoln high school pigskin stars started the fray. Kilbourne Schmitt, Bishop, Prestegaard Bauer, Sauer and Masterson of the 1929 powerhouse and Austin Red and Black captain a few years back, being combined with O'Brien of Omaha South, Elliott of Omaha North and Norwood of York to form the starters. Bob Raugh, another former Brownie, started for the nubbins.

Both coaches—Browne and Day—gave many men chances to show their wares. The nubbins were guilty of several fumbles during the afternoon, but the freshman sympathized and collected about the same number.

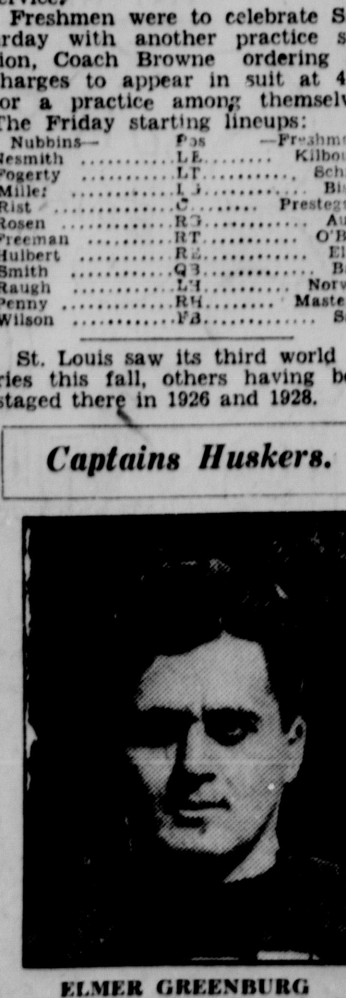

Smith, Penny and Raugh featured in the nubbin backfield, with Rist and Don Hulbert featuring the line play. Bauer and Sauer, the ex-Lincoln "Gold Dust Twins" combination, were outstanding in the first-year backfield, while Bishop and Elliott looked best of the numerous linemen who saw service.

Freshmen were to celebrate Saturday with another practice session, Coach Browne ordering his charges to appear in suit at 4:30 for a practice among themselves. The Friday starting lineups:

Nubbins—	Pos	—Freshman
Nesmith	LE	Kilbourne
Fogerty	LT	Schmitt
Miller	LG	Bishop
Rist	C	Prestegaard
Rosen	RG	Austin
Freeman	RT	O'Brien
Hulbert	RE	Elliott
Smith	QB	Bauer
Raugh	LH	Norwood
Penny	RH	Masterson
Wilson	FB	Sauer

St. Louis saw its third world series this fall, others having been staged there in 1926 and 1928.
